BIBLE SPEAKS BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE TRUST AND OBEY!

June 28, 1987

Background Scripture: Romans 3:27 through 4:25. votional Reading: Romans 4:16-25. The Apostle Paul seems to confuse a lot of people. Writing to the church at Rome, he puts quite a faith from works that we run into bit of effort into emphasizing the need for righteous living and good works (1:6, 13). Then, just when we think we've gotten that message straight, he seems to change his mind: "we hold that a man is justified by faith apart from works of the law" (Romans 3:28). So, what is it, Paul? The "works" you specify in chapter one, "For he will render to every man according to his works," or the "faith" you hold is "reckoned" to us as righteousness in chapter three?

For centuries Christians have been battling over this issue of "Faith or works?" It was one of the great issues of the Reformation and, in fact, it is a continuing controversy within Christianity. Some have characterized it as a controversy between Paul ("faith alone") and James ("works alone"), but, as we can see in Romans alone, Paul himself seems to come down on both sides of the argument.

If we look closely at Romans, however, we find that this "faith vs. works" is a phony proposition. We have polarized in our theological thinking what is not really a polarization at all. One does not have to choose-up sides--as so often Christians have done-because this is not a case of either for. We do not have to choose between either "faith" or "works" because they are not really separate or opposing

COMPLIMENTARY VIEWS

This old "faith vs. works" dilemma is like trying to decide whether pants are singular or plural. Actually, as one wag put it, "they're singular at the top and plural at the bottom." It depends upon one's perspective. Faith and works are actually complimentary

-rather than opposing--perspe tives on the same reality. Both of these are a singular response to the goodness of God. If we focus on the results of that response, we see the works that issue from it. If we focus on the motive, however, we see the faith that evokes the works. In the very beginning of his letter to the Romans, Paul focussed on good works, but later he shifts his perspective to the motivation and power that produces those works. Actually, it is when we separate trouble. Is it possible to have works without faith? Of course it is -- we may do the right thing, not because we love and are grateful to God, but because we are trying to "buy" or "earn" his salvation We can produce the results, but our motives are selfish and unloving. This is the motivation of a person who refrains from breaking the law, not because he is honest, but because he's afraid not to uphold it.

Similarly, it is possible to have 'faith" without works. We may believe all kinds of religious teachings as "true," without letting those teachings affect the way we live. But, you'll notice that I put quotation marks around "faith" above. That's because we may call that belief "faith." but it isn't Belief is faith only when it motivates us. This is what Paul was saying about Abraham in the long passage in Romans 4. Abraham lived his life in obedience to God because he first believed that God would keep his promise. If he had believed, but live disobediently, his faith would not have been "reckoned as righteousness." If he had on the other hand, been obedient out of fear, that would not have sufficed either. But Abraham was loyal to God because he really had faith in his promises. Abraham trusted God and everything he did was founded upon his trust, which

Paul calls Abraham's "faith." What was true of Abraham is no less true for us. As Paul writes the Romans, "...the words, "It was reckoned to him," were written not for his sake alone, but for ours also" (4:23, 24). If we trust in him and his gift of grace, like Abraham, we will live obediently on his promises. That is faith.

tention Investors:

Fishing for a higher-yielding investment?

Don't forget the added risks!

There's an old saying that you've heard many times: "The greater the reward, the greater the risk." This is certainly true in the financial world — the higher the rate, the greater the risk

Also, there's more than one type of risk involved in many financial investments. Many "non-bank" investments have as many as four different types of risks you should be aware of before investing your hard-earned

MARKET RISK — The risk of price fluctuations in the securities market for both stocks

PURCHASING POWER RISK - This risk, associated with inflation, is that your invested dollar may not buy as much in the future as it could today.

INTEREST RATE RISK — This risk generally causes the value of certain investments to move in the opposite direction of interest rates — as rates rise, the value decreases.

FINANCIAL RISK — This risk goes to the credit quality of an investment, and indicates that a higher rate should be paid where safety and security are sacrificed.

If you have been lured by the promise of a 'whopping interest rate" for a non-bank investment, we suggest you carefully assess the "boat-load" of risks that go along with it. Only then will you realize where your hardearned dollars should be invested — at First United National Bank & Trust.

LAMBERT HONORED BY GOVERNOR SCHAEFER - Herbert Stanley Lambert III, a junior at Southern High School, was recently honored by Governor William Donald Schaefer at a State House ceremony to kick off National Flag Week. Lambert was one of 24 outstanding teenagers selected to represent each Maryland county and Baltimore City at the National Flag Week Ceremonies, held June 10 to 15 in Baltimore. A member of the National Honor Society, Lambert is on the National Honor Roll and has served as parliamentarian of the Student Council and was Southern's ambassador to the Hugh O'Brien Leadership Seminar. He plays on the school's baskethall team and competed in the 1986 State Golf Championship. He also served as a member of the Governor's Youth Advisory Council. Each student was accompanied by an escort who has made a significant difference in his or her life. Lambert was accompanied by James Zimmerman, his mathematics teacher. "He has taught me to be willing to think on my own and to fine new ways to solve problems.... Because of his positive influence, I feel that I am prepared to face the challenges tween June 13 and 14, was estithat lie ahead," said Lambert. Students were chosen for the honor by the local school superintendents on the basis of academic standing, participation in school activities and involvement in community.

Hospice Program On Bereavement To Be Expanded

Plans are underway to expand the Bereavement Component of the Garrett County Hospice Program, according to Wayne Johnson, executive director.

The new program which will be for all, whether or not their deceased family member was a Hospice patient, will offer direct and indirect support to individuals who are experiencing the inevitable grief following the death of a loved one.

Johnson said contacts will be made through the mail and will begin with a sympathy note, which will be followed in two weeks by a brochure detailing the various phases of grief. These mail contacts will be followed by phone contacts and visits by trained volunteers when appropriate.

The support groups will be time limited to eight sessions. They will be facilitated by a trained and experienced volunteer group leader.

Additional indirect support will be offered those interested through a comprehensive 12-month bereavement correspondence program. The correspondence mailings, which will be sent once a month, have been adapted from a similar program designed by Rebecca Harvey, R.N., and co-workers Treasurer Lucille H. Maurer in the Sacred Heart Hospice of Cumberland. The monthly readings are designed to assist families in the privacy of their own homes through their grief and to help them realize that what they may be experiencing is not an illness, but a normal reaction to loss, Johnson said.

Committee, consisting of Martha Jachowski, Wayne Johnson, Rev. Throughout the year, 14 different individuals have participated in these sessions. It is the Committee's hope that the proposed restructuring and expansion of services will be able to reach more people with the limited resources available, Johnson said.

A STUDY OF MARYLAND'S COUNTIES was conducted recently by fourth grade students at Loch Lynn School. Students wrote letters to selected counties for information which they used for their reports. They dressed in the costume of the major industry of their selected counties and presented their reports in front of a video camera. They also made paper mache maps of Maryland. With the assistance of Charles Trautwein, computer resource teacher, information from each county was entered into a computer program and the information was printed into booklet form for each student to keep. In the photo, left to right, front row, are Melody Lee, Erin Dintaman, Emilie Moats, and Cathy Crosco. In the second row, same order, are Mike Shreve, Erica Durr, Jamie Glotfelty, and Scott Blythe. In the third row, same order, are Mike Liller, Scott Riley, and Marvin White. In the fourth row, same order, are Jenny Reams, Shannon Smith, Jamie

Will, and Mandy Parrish. Linda Martin was the group's teacher. Arts Series At first arrival basis, are $50 ($40 for faculty, staff, senior citizens and children under 12; $25 for fulltime students and $40 for part-time students). Individual tickets may be purchased about three weeks before each performance by calling the Mountainlair Box Office at (304) 293-3919; and from the Center Box Office starting at 7 p.m. the night of a performance.

The series is sponsored in part through grants from the Mid-Atlantic States Art Consortium, the arts and humanities division of the West Virginia Department of Culture and History, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Poultry Broiler Show Completed

The 1987 4-H/FFA Poultry Broiler Project was recently completed with a show at Southern High School Vo-Ag Center. The show included 16 youth participants who displayed three dressed Cornish White Rock birds.

Where Your Advertising $$$ Go

by Robert B. McSparran, president Atlantic Dairy Cooperative

A recent report from the National Dairy Board indicates that its anticipated revenue will be down for the next fiscal year. The National Dairy Board expects to receive about $75 million for its advertising, sales promotion, educational and research programs. This represents nearly $10 million less than

This fund, as you know, is generated from the 15 cents per hundredweight that is taken out of your milk check. The National Dairy Board gets approximately 5.6 cents of this mandatory assessment, with the rest going to state and regional groups.

The decline in the Board's operating budget is attributed primarily to lower milk marketings resulting from the whole herd buyout program. Milk production in the United States is running almost four percent behind last year. In its report, the National Dairy Board compares the dairy industry's advertising and promotion expenditures with those of the beverage industry. It cites a "Hoard's" magazine report that one cent is spent across the nation for every gallon of milk, while 14 cents are spent for beer, six for fruit juices and drinks, four cents for soft drinks and three for coffee. Most of these are expected to increase in the future.

Although the National Dairy Board believes that gains in per capita consumption can be credited to its efforts, the Board believes the $75 million figure is not adequate against such competition. This may tie in with suggestions from some people that our assessment be increased.

I personally hope that doesn't happen. The 15 cents we now cough up seems to be doing a job for us.

There is still some confusion among our members about what happens to the rest of the 15 cents. There are questions about the chanics and the rationale.

Four to support the advertising and promotion programs of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area (MAMMA). •If you are an Order Two shipper, the dime goes to the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADA/DC). ·If your milk is sold in areas that are not federally regulated, the money goes directly to the National Dairy Board unless you (or your cooperative) specify otherwise. That seems to me and other Atlantic Dairy Cooperative directors to be an equitable arrangement. Our funds flow with our milk right to the consumer market.

While some state programs would like to see more money behind their promotion efforts, I believe it is best to follow our market. I can understand their needs, but I won't buy the argument that money should be spent where the milk is produced. We "export" a lot of milk to out-of-state consumers.

There are others who still feel - and are vocal about it - that brand advertising by proprietary dealers should be encouraged and funds made available to them on a matching basis. But the consensus seems to be that it would be too difficult to administer or to determine whether farmer money would merely replace money dealers would spend anyway.

All the programs, public or private, have a unifying effect, with the total being better than the sum of the individual efforts. I personally am enthusiastic about the MAMMA program, which has certainly had an impact on Order Four fluid milk sales.

which were up 1.7 percent in March. MAMMA's use of sports heroes like baseball players Mike Schmidt of the Phillies and Cal Ripkin of the Orioles, tennis star Pam Shriver, and Georgetown and Olympic basketball coach John Thompson has paid off. They have developed exciting advertising that captures the personalities of these athletes at a time when America is so conscious of physical fitness.

With such focus on health and nutrition, there are few people who play as important a role as the dairy farmer who produces

Research Linking Mastitis To Milking Machines Is Inconclusive

cows, research fails to provide conclusive evidence, according to a professor of dairy science at Penn State University

Steve Spencer says many milking types of microorganisms cause mastitis; the one that causes the infection in a particular cow depends on the number of microorganisms present, their virulence (ability to overcome body defenses) their growth phase and the resistence of the

Spencer says research on the vacuum level and on the pulsation phase, rate and ratio of the milking machine has shown conflicting or nonconclusive says relationships. "It is difficult to produce mastitis infections experimentally by altering these milking machine parameters," he says.

However, two areas of research - pulsation failure and vacuum fluctuations - do show a relationship between the milking machine and mastitis.

Pulsationless milking short teat-cup barrels and failure of the lines to close show an increase in the new infection rate when teats are not dipped. The infection pathway is unknown.

Vacuum fluctuations in the milking machine have also been associated with increased infection rates. Spencer says. English workers classified fluctuation as (1) irregular, (2) cyclic or (3) fluid flow. Infection rates increased with combined irregular and cyclic vari-

Although the milking produce new infections: cyclic machine has long been suspect variations of 12 inches of in influencing mastitis in dairy mercury and a 40 percent fall in vacuum and recovery seven times per minute. Seldom, if ever do these severe vacuum conditions occur in normal

"Subsequent experiments in Ireland," Spencer says however, "suggest that these fluctuations were conducive to liner slip." The fluctuations result in "teat-end impacts," which may carry pathogens past the defenses of the milk canal. "The evidence is increasing substantially which indicates that efforts to reduce the number and intensity of teat-end impacts is justified," Spencer

Because these random teatend impacts are caused by massive changes in vacuum, Spencer calls them "acute" variations

He suggests several ways that dairy farmers can minimize such impacts:

·Carefully apply and remove the machine to minimize sudden losses of vacuum.

•Dry cows' teats before machine application. Wet teats are likely to reduce friction between the liner and teat, causing the liner to slip. Drving the teats also reduces the number of pathogens on the teat surface ·Adjust the machine to the individual cow. The use of radial control arms (hose holders) and unit adjusters is recommended.

•Keep vacuum levels within acceptable ranges as suggested Variations must be great to by the manufacturer and avoid

According to Haenlein, environmental mastitis is caused, instead, by bacteria such as E. coli, Klebsiella and some other Streptococci that live mainly in manure, in bedding, on concrete floors and in the soil. Infections from these organisms typically last only a short time, possibly two weeks. while contagious infections may last much longer. Elevated somatic cell levels, if they stay tagious infections rather than rather than trying to cure it?" an environmental problem, and

Many environmental infections begin at the start of the cow's dry period, but without proper treatment they can also recur in the second half as well. Don't expect dry cow treatment to be effective longer than two to three weeks, says Haenlein. Cows that lie on wet and dirty barn alleys, in infrequently bedded free-stalls and those that come into the milking parlor with manure and dirt caked to their teats and udder have a high risk of exposure to lower bacteria counts in the environmental mastitis. milk

Why not avoid the problem by providing them with dry, clean free-stall floors, alleys and holding grounds on which they may rest," Haenlein asks. 'Most people change the sheets on their beds at least once a week. Why not give our cows similar consideration? When we kept them tied up in oldfashioned stanchion barns, we changed their bedding at least once a day.

"Moving them into free-stalls was supposed to be progress less labor, less bedding expense, more freedom for the cows. But do we keep their udder environment as neat and clean as it was under the old system of fresh daily straw-bedded stanchion stalls? I wonder and so do others, and that's the reason for the new term: environmental mastitis. Wouldn't it be cheaper and up a long time, indicate con- better to prevent this problem,

Haenlein stressed that clean. dry bedding and grounds are the kevs to success in mastitis control. Besides preventing mastitis, providing these conditions will also reduce barn flies and their reproduction. and this in turn will reduce some fly-carried mastitis infections, too. Clean, dry bedding should also keep udders clean and dry so when cows enter the milking parlor we'll be able to use dry, rather than wet udder preparation for milking. Dry preparation tends to result in

"So you see, dry and clean bedding has several benefits to repay you for the extra labor. Besides that," Haenlein says, recent research shows that vitamin E and selenium supplements, in addition to vitamin A and zinc, help strengthen resistance and thus prevent losses from environmental mastitis "

Ohio State University recommendations are for 1 000 international units of vitamin E per dry cow per day, plus three milligrams of selenium plus 50 milligrams selenium injected three weeks before calving. For milking cows 400 to 600 units of vitamin E and six milligrams of selenium are recommended per head per day. Blood samples drawn by veterinarians can be analyzed for selenium sufficiency in many laboratories. including that at Pennsylvania State University.

"In any case," Haenlein says, the milk from each cow should be tested monthly for somatic cell count at a state lab or through the DHIA system. Then we'll know whether we have a problem and, if so, whether it's environmental or contagious. We'll also know what to do about it - for better profits on our dairy farms.'

Butter Is Better

Butter is one of the oldest known dairy products, having been discovered about 4,000 years ago. It was accidentally churned in an animal-skin pouch, slung on the back of a horse or camel. The pouch bounced as the animal moved. churning the cream or milk into the substance known as butter.

During ancient times, butter was used as a medicine, an oil, a poultice, a wrinkle eraser and even money.

For years, buttermaking was strictly a home activity. Wooden or crockery churns sloshed the cream or milk around until butter particles separated from the liquid. The remaining liquid was called buttermilk.

The first United States creamery to manufacture butter was built in Iowa in 1871. Present-day creameries make butter by continuous buttermaking operations that turn out 1,800 to 11,000 pounds per hour.

Butter is a dairy product made from cream, with or without common salt. Federal standards do not permit any preservatives or additives except approved food color (annatto and B-carotene). Butter contains not less than 80 percent by weight of milkfat. Butter has the same calorie content as regular margarine.

Butter is graded by government inspectors on the basis of flavor, body, color and salt characteristics.

Look for these grades on butter labels:

USDA AA: Made from fresh sweet cream. Fine, pleasing aroma; delicate, sweet flavor; smooth creamy texture with good spreadability. If salted, salt is completely dissolved and blended in just the right amount.

USDA A: Made from fresh cream. Has a pleasing flavor. Is fairly smooth in texture.

USDA B: Made from sweet or sour cream. Not quite as good flavor as first two grades.

Whipped butter is butter that has had its volume increased through the incorporation of air or inert gas, resulting in a product that is easier to spread. It may be unsalted or lightly salted. Because part of its volume is air, whipped butter cannot be successfully substituted for regular butter in

For peak of flavor, opened butter should be kept in a covered dish, refrigerated in butter compartment. Unopened butter may be kept on refrigerator shelf at 39 degrees F or lower for several weeks.

To freeze, wrap each package in foil or plastic film. Butter keeps well six to nine months at 0 degrees F or lower.

Butter is a rich source of vitamin A, which aids in growth and vision, and also contains vitamin D, which helps calcium and phosphorus to build strong bones and teeth.

Milkfat provides a concentrated source of energy and is digested slowly, thus furnishing satiety value. Fat is needed for the absorption of some vitamins - A. D. E and K: it contains certain fatty acids essential to good nutrition.

Remove white froth as it forms on top. Pour off clear, liquid yellow butter, carefully keeping back the sediment of milk solids. One pound butter (16 oz.) when clarified yields 12 ounces. It may be used for sauteing without burning, or at higher temperatures than regular butter. Keep refrigerated or

COULD YOU HANDLE AN ACCIDENT?

If you found someone caught in a farm machine, would you know what to do? Could you stop the engine? And know how to get help? How many in your area, even those on farms, would know

People living or working on a farm should be able to do most of the possible life-saving tasks listed here.

That includes those in sales, insurance, extension, vo-ag, and other people who regularly travel country roads and visit farmers, he said. Obviously, if two people find someone in distress, one could go for help while the other assists the victim. But a person alone, depending on the situation, probably needs to alleviate the victim's plight before seeking help.

Being trained in first aid techniques is a plus, especially if the victim is bleeding or stops breathing. Unless there is an immediate threat (such as fire) no layman should try to move a seriously injured person or attempt more than a simple extrication. SPECIFICATION BEEF PRODUCTION

The program at the recent meeting of the Beef Improvement Federation focused on the impact of specification production on the beef industry. Dr. Del Allen, Kansas State University Meat Scientist, presented specifications for five types of beef being marketed on a brand basis. Dr. Allen stated that the days of producing and selling cattle on the average were coming to an

Five specification groups outlined by Allen included: 1. High Quality Beef - assuring maximum muscle palatability

2. Retail Store Beef - consistent palatability, little external fat, minimum variation in cut size and weight. Institutional Beef – consistent palatability, greater tolerance in cut size and weight.

4. Lean (Lite) Beef - emphasizing reduced fat. 5. Organic Beef — produced without use of growth stimulants

Hopefully, a shift to purchasing cattle to fit brand name product specifications will result in higher prices being paid for superior animals and ultimately will result in greater price discounts for inferior animals. An optimistic projection would see the price signals being transferred back through the beef production chain to the calf producer resulting in a significant shift in breeding and production practices. The projected results of a widely accepted specification production system would most likely include: 1) fewer breeds, 2) more emphasis on carcass traits in breeding animal selection, 3) reduced outlets for non-specification cattle with bigger discounts, and 4) more contractual integration and reduced reliance on USDA grading for beef merchandising purposes.

LATIONS. The Board of License Com missioners of Garrett County MD, Ann. Code Article 2B, Sec tion 159 (c) (6), like all such Boards throughout the State is charged by the law to regulate the sale, control, manufacture, distribution, transportatioin and storage of alcoholic bever ages, to obtain respect and obedience for the law and to and promote ance, MD. Ann. Code Article Section 159 (a) (1). The Board has the power to regulate Section 1 (b) (1) and to enforce

Section 1 (b) (2) and to create Given these responsibilities the Board finds it necessary to interpret law: and when the law is not plain or when different parts of the law are in conflict. harmonize those inconsis tancies so as to best effectuate

the perceived legislative intent The Board is aware that cer tain sections of House Bill 658 are in conflict with existing statute and therefore finds it necessary to adopt regulations so as to carry out its duties with regard to the enforcement of

Further, the Board resolves that given the fact that: House Bill 658 was signed into law on June 2. 1987, less than two weeks before the annual renewal process is to begin, and the Board did not receive copies of relevant Attorney General's Opinions until shortly before the Bill was signed that time is of the essence and that this emergency resolution and the following emergency regulations are

The Bill seems to ignore the statutory provisions with regard to renewal of licenses by eliminating Class D licenses and creating new Class D On Sale and Class D Off Sale licenses without providing for publication, opportunity public hearing, etc.; as pro-vided in Section 68. The Board, therefore, will assume the Legislature intended those applications, and publications made prior to July 1st, 1987, for the old Class D license will now result in the issuing of the two new class licenses

2. The Bill provides for the issuance of Class D On Sale to establishments with over 75% of sales for consumption on the premises and the issuance of Class D Off Sale licenses to establishments with over 75% of sales to persons consuming beverages off the premises.

The Board will make the determination of which cate gory a given license falls into based upon the most recent quarters surcharge data. The Board makes no finding, at this time, with regard to establish ments which do not fall into either category.
3. The Board will issue re newed licenses, '87-'88, to persons upon payment of the enhanced fees called for by the Bill, as interpreted by the Attorney General in his letter to Governor Schaefer of May 28, 1987, a copy of which is attached hereto. The Board will accept payments made prior to July 1, ment before that date, as the law does not become effective prior to that date. GARRETT Cooperative Extension Service COUNTY FARM-O-GRAM

by Jim Simms Extension Agent, Agriculture Science

How much manure is produced on the farm? Livestock produces a lot of valuable manure. The following figures show just how much fertilizer is produced by beef and dairy cows.

Beef Cow

A 1,000-pound beef cow deposits 60 pounds of manure per day, containing 0.34 pounds N, 0.11 pounds P205, and 0.24 pounds K20.

While a 1,000-pound dairy cow produces 82 pounds of manure per day, containing 0.41 pounds N, 0.073 pounds P205, and 0.27 pounds K20.

Of course the actual nutrient content of manure varies with type of animal, feed, manure storage system, and method of manure application. Anyway "What's the Bottom Line?" Assuming no nutrient loss during handling and a value of $0.22 per pound for nitrogen, $0.20 per pound for Phosphorus, and $0.10 per pound for Potassium

* A 100-head beef herd produces $4,410 worth of fertilizer per

* A 100-head dairy herd produces $4,810 worth of fertilizer per vear.

Analysis of a manure sample is free with the purchase of a soil analysis from the University of Maryland. Knowing the nutrient value of manure can help you plan your fertilizer purchases this spring.

Implants for Suckling Beef Calves

With calving season well underway around the state, it appears appropriate to discuss calf management practices, in particular, the use of implants in suckling calves weighing less than 400 pounds.

Growth promotants, in the form of implants, represent a management tool available to the cattle producer which can offer substantial returns. These returns can be expected both in terms of increased average daily gain and improved efficiency of feed conversion. This should result in increased weaning weight in the

Cattle Inventory Down Nationally

All cattle and calves in Maryland as of January 1 totaled from January 1, 1986, and the lowest inventory since 1940. The total number of cows that had calved was 175,000 on January 1, down 10 percent from a year

Of the total, 50,000 were beef cows, 30 percent below a year ago, while dairy cows totaled 125,000, up one percent. The 330,000 head, down 11 percent number of other heifers, bulls, and steers 500 pounds and over as well as calves under 500 pounds all decreased from the previous year.

Cattle on Maryland farms on January 1, were valued at $193.1 million, down 10 percent from a year ago. The average value per head was $585. The 1986 calf crop is estimated at 160,000, down nine percent from 1985.

All cattle and calves in the United States as of January 1 totaled 102 million head, down three percent from the 105 million on January 1, 1986, and seven percent below the 110 million two years ago. This continued the recent downward trend in cattle inventories begun four years ago and was the lowest number on hand since 1962.

All cows and heifers that have calved, at 44.5 million, were down one percent from 44.8 million a year ago, down four percent from 46.2 million two years ago and the lowest since 1961 Beef cows, at 33.9 million, were one percent above January 1. 1986, reversing the downward trend started four years ago. calves and subsequent lowered production costs overall. It is difficult to identify a single other management practice with the ability to equal the economic return offered from implant use.

Currently, the implants approved for use in steer calves weighing less than 400 pounds include Compudose, Ralgro and Synovex-C. Ralgro and Synovex-C also carry approval for heifer calves of the same weight. None of these products are approved for use in breeding animals. All three products, when placed in the prescribed location in the animal's ear, have proven to be effective in enhancing average daily gain and improving feed efficiency. There is a variation in the length of effectiveness of the various products and this factor must be considered prior to selecting an implant, as re-implanting may be required in some instances.

A recent study at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, examined and compared the effectiveness of each of these implant products (1986 Univ. of Il, Beef Cattle Res. Rept.) The results of that study indicated that steer calves showed a response to all implants. Similar results were observed in heifers. Re-implanting increased gain over a single implant of either Ralgro or Synovex-C. Compudose did not give a significant response above a single implant of Ralgro or Synovex-C in steers and gave a poorer response when compared to re-implanting with either Ralgro or Synovex-C. No differences were observed between Ralgro and Synovex-C.

The overall response to implanting (average of all treatments) ranged from 5-49 pounds. At a calf price of $.66/lb, this would represent a return of $3.30-$32.34 per head from an initial investment (implant only) of $2-$3/head. On the average, an almost 11:1 return on investment. Milk: Nature's Most Perfect Food

Many of us know the nutritional value of milk and milk products, but how many of us know milk also:

1. Removes ink stains. Yes, milk put on ink stains and left to stand for several hours prior to normal washing of the garment is one of the surest bets for removing an ink stain.

2. Seals in moisture. Yes, milk can be an important skin protectant in cold dry weather. Blotting hands or face with milk following the application of moisturizer enhances the action of the moisture to prevent drying and premature wrinkles.

CRP Questions Answered

February 27 at 4:30 p.m. is the deadline for those wishing to sign up for the Conservation Reserve Program. This article intends to answer some of the most-asked questions concerning

What is the Conservation Reserve Program? The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), enacted December 23, 1985, as part of the Food Security Act of 1985, encourages farmers to stop growing crops on highly erodible cropland and plant it to grass or trees through 10-year contracts with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

How does an interested farmer sign up for the Conservation Reserve Program? The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is the administering agency and applications are made at the local ASCS office. Sign-up periods are announced periodically by the Secretary of Agriculture. At the time of application, a farmer must submit bids stating the rental payment he would accept per acre per year to convert his highly erodible cropland to permanent vegetative cover for the duration general seminar sessions will of the contract period.

How are payments made? Annual rental payments will be made to the farmer if he enters a contract to convert eligible cropfications, adapting the farm land to permanent vegetative cover. Is haying and grazing authorized? Having and grazing are not permitted on lands in the Conservation Reserve Program during the contract period. However, the owner may charge for recreational access such as hunting or other recreational uses.

What happens when ownership or operators change? Tenants and sharecroppers will share payments with owners on a fair and equitable basis. To prohibit land speculation, land must be owned for three years prior to entering it into the CRP-if ownership has changed since January 1, 1985. Participants who lose control of reserve lands must refund payments unless the new owner or operator continues the contract.

Who has more detailed information relating to the Conservation Reserve Program? The Photographic Genius Of Leo J. Beachy

by R. Craig Spe

Coincidence—or is it fate?—surrounds discovery of one of the last publications to carry work by Garrett County's late acclaimed photographer Leo J. Beachy. A Grantsville resident all his 53 years, Beachy achieved nationwide recognition by the time he died in 1927, a recognition spiralling again today.

Beachy's career peaked when his portrayal of a Garrett County winter appeared—three months before he died—in the February 1927 issue of National Geographic magazine, the most prestigious publication ever to carry his work. This achievement, though, was forgotten over the ensuing decades.

By 1977, however, three collectors fatefully returned a total of 2,500 scattered but well preserved Beachy negatives to the Beachy family—specifically Beachy's then-52-year-old niece, Maxine Beachy Broadwater—sparking various investigations into Beachy's career and legacy. Meanwhile, in Washington, D.C., American University humanities professor Dr. Constance B. Schulz turned up Beachy's work in the February 1927 issue of National Geographic.

Upon hearing this news, Maxine and her now-late husband, David Broadwater, were reminded that David's ancestors, from over a century past, had collected memorabilia of every shape, subject and size imaginable.

"The Broadwater family didn't throw a thing away," Maxine recalls. "Dave even had papers saved by his grandfather."

Much of the Broadwater collection, most of it accumulated long before Maxine Beachy joined the Broadwater family by marriage in 1941, had come to rest in the attic of Dave and Maxine's house. Intrigued by Dr. Schulz' finding, Dave burst up the attic steps and discovered that buried in the extensive collection were many National Geographic magazines hoarded over several decades.

Dave sifted through the mountain of mementos until—there it

Three Future Farmers of America?

These three ladies apparently had no qualms about wading the Casselman River in their dresses while fishing.

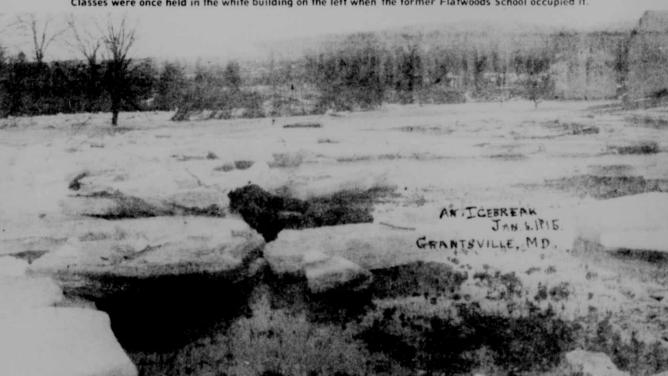

One distinguishing feature of the former Hotel Victoria (circled) and the steeple of the former Catholic church (indicated by arrow, but not visible in the contrast photo) are about the only clues that indicate the approximate site from which Beachy captured this picture of Main Street in Grantsville, apparently near the former National Hotel. (See modern contrast photo).

Classes were once held in the white building on the left when the former Flatwoods School occupied it.

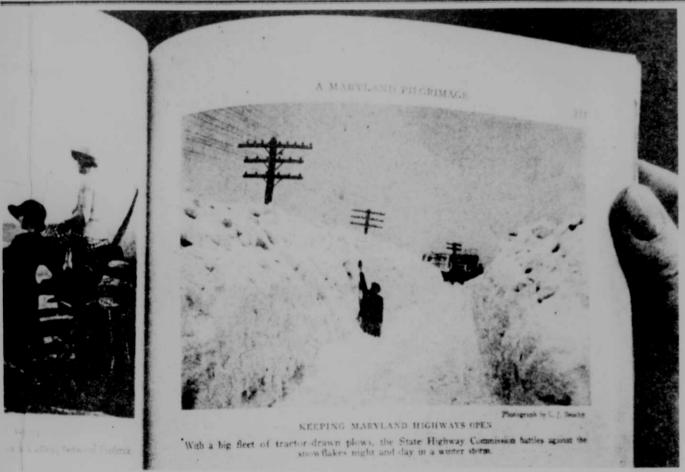

An especially severe cold spell produced this 1915 ice break on the Casselman River

Although whichever rooftop Beachy used to photograph the National Pike apparently no longer exists, a crane donated and operated by Mike Kenney of Kenney Signs, Frostburg, made it possible to photograph the same area as it appears today from approximately the same angle Beachy used.

BEACHY'S CLAIM TO FAME was given quite a boost in appeared in National Geographic. February 1927 when this photo of a Garrett County winter scene

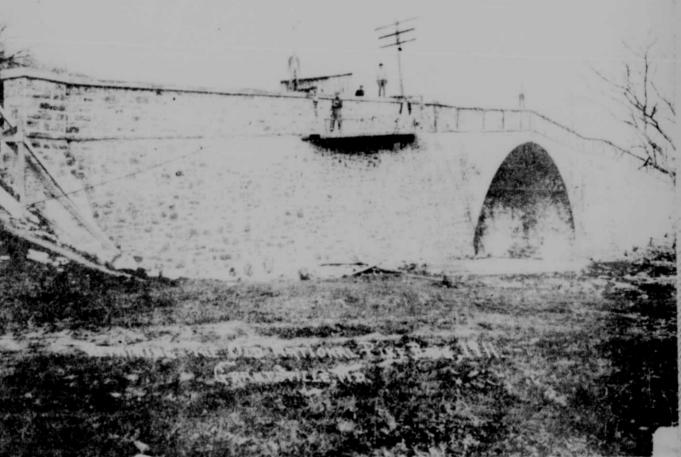

the people of Garrett County, the state of Maryland, or even the United States, but it represents to all the world, the wooded hills and greening pastures white with sheep in the Temperate Zone of Beachy titled this photo "The Flock of Hills" and wrote that it North America. I value the original negative of this picture at "is not only a picture for the people of my native village, nor for (sic) $1,500 and have always printed from it with a celuloid sheet on top." Beachy offered no explanation for the extraordinary value this picture held for him.

It is common knowledge that the Casselman Bridge in Grantsville has undergone extensive preservation measures in latter decades, but less commonly known is that the stone arch had once deteriorated so badly that holes in the road surface allowed travelers to see the river directly beneath, large segments of the wall bordering the road were missing, and even vegetation was slowly overtaking the once-grand structure. "Farfamed and much beloved" Garrett County photographer Leo J. Beachy recorded this very rare view before exhaustive repair work in 1911 saved the now-national monument.

Repairs to the Casselman Bridge in 1911 permitted it to be used until it was permanently closed and declared a national monument in the 1950s. Beachy's grandfather helped haul the stone with which the bridge was built.

Something To Think About

DIRECTOR -SHOULD THE BODY BE VIEWED?

Some people have strong ews on this question and these should be respected. Others have no firm commit ment one way or the other, and would answer such a question on the basis of circumstances. For these people, we would offer the following advice, based on many years of experience. If the body can be made viewable, it should be viewed. It serves a number very helpful and constructive purposes. In cases where the decedent has been living away from home, or confined to a distant medical institution, viewing can provide the confirmation that death has occurred It provides a way to recall the loved one as he or she should be remember ed-free of the evidence of pain, wasting, or injury Viewing is likewise conside ed therapeutic for people. It is especially helpful for a child who has experienced the death of one loved. Instead of relying on agination, the child can begin to comprehend the real meaning of death.

NOTICE

TO WATER CUSTOMERS IN OAKLAND

The Town of Oakland has approximately 850 water customers. Some have experienced frozen water lines and others have let water run to prevent freezing. Some have shared with their waterless neighbors. Neither the Town nor the customers have been at fault in the situation. In fairness to both, where there is evidence that any of the above has occurred, the March quarter water bills will be adjusted as follows:

1. The least amount a customer will pay will be the minimum quarterly charge.

2. The maximum a customer will pay will be the highest amount paid in any quarter during the past year.

3. If the amount of water consumed is less than the last quarter, the customer will be billed for that amount.

THE REPUBLICAN

OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1987

Friendsville Man Sentenced To 16 Years In DOC

During Garrett County brount Court proceedings last Thursday, a Friendsville man was sentenced to a total of 16 years in the Maryland Department of Corrections by Judge Fred A. Thaver.

Wayne E. Drake, 56, was 15-year-sentence. He was also found guilty of child abuse, in 15-year sentence to be served concurrently with the first

In another case, Drake, who was also found guilty of fourth degree sexual offense in a previous trial, was sentenced to one year in the Maryland Department of Corrections. That sentence is to be served conin the first case.

The charges were filed in Circuit Court by Deputy L.E. Gnegy, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, after incidents in September and January of last year when Drake reportedly engaged in sexual activity with a female under the age of 14.

An appeal was filed by Drake Tuesday in Circuit Court. Defending attorney was John R.

Toston, public defender A sentencing hearing was also held last Thursday by Judge Thayer during which time he sentenced James H.P. Mann, 67, Mtn. Lake Park, to five years in the Maryland Department of Corrections.

Mtn. Lake Park Will Again Seek Tax Differential

The Mayor and Town Council of Mtn. Lake Park sent a letter of intent recently to the Board Garrett County Commissioners that they will once again seek a tax differential for that town.

Through a state-mandated law that lumps rural Garrett County with urban counties throughout the county, each municipality may seek a tax credit for services they feel overlap within the county and town.

The commissioners strongly oppose the current law, stating that they feel it does not apply to Garrett County. "For the past several years, we have strongly requested that our legislators introduce new legislation that will prove more equitable to everyone in the county, but that has been steadfastly refused," said Commissioner Ernest Gregg

Mtn. Lake Park received a tax credit of over $25,000 last year. The commissioners opposed granting that credit but said they felt litigation could have been more costly.

In a letter to the Mtn. Lake Park Mayor and Town Council dated June 25, the commissioners spelled out to those officials the ramifications of their seeking a tax differential again this year.

The commissioners pointed out that the county has been maintaining Deer Park Avenue from Columbia Circle to Broadford/Dennett Road Intersection which entails 1,821 feet; Dennett Road from Mtn. Lake Park town limits to Broadford/Deer Park Intersection entailing 1,296 feet; and Broadford Road from Mtn. Lake Park town limits to Dennett Road/Deer Park Intersection that is 3,417 feet or a total of 6,534 feet which equates to 1.2375 miles. In the past, there has been no cost to the town for the maintaining of those portions of roads within Abuse Of Freedom . . .

The July 4th celebration is a special one this year, in that we are not only once again observing the anniversary of our independence, but also the 200th anniversary of the signing of our United States Constitution. It is a day to contemplate and appreciate all of our freedoms that, unfortunately, we take for granted most other days of the year.

We at this office are, of course, particularly appreciative of the first amendment to our Constitution, which guarantees freedom of the press. Without that freedom, our newspaper and all others in this country would be a mockery and most likely a puppet of government.

Although we are part of this nation's media, we are not above firing criticisms at it from time to time. One of the gripes we have right now is the continuing saga, and ridiculous news coverage, of the Jim and Tammy Bakker scandal. If we were in charge of all media, we would essentially consider this issue and the individuals involved as history. While certain important aspects of the "crisis" should be covered, we believe that a day-by-day, detailed report of what the Bakkers had for lunch, what Tammy wore to the mall that afternoon, and her standing in front of the television cameras every other day giving tearful soliloquies are a bit much.

And while we are being critical, a somewhat related issue that galls us is another form of abuse of the freedom of speech, whereby television evangelists send letters to millions of viewers pleading for donations. Not only do the letters beg for money, but they are also often laced with threats, indicating that, unless the recipient of the letter responds with a cash donation, God will cause bad things to happen to him. Persons especially targeted to receive these letters include wealthy, but weakminded people, plus many vulnerable senior citizens who have built a comfortable nest egg over the years.

It irritates us even more that most of these evangelists own several homes, boats, and automobiles and bring home personal salaries in the millions. How is this lifestyle remotely similar to that of Jesus Christ?

For a humorous viewpoint on this topic, don't miss our editorial cartoon for today, plus an excellent piece written by Craig Speicher.

Letters to the Editor

In regard to the timber River and Potomac-Garrett State Forest lands, I urge all county residents to stand behind the Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service foresters. They base their work on facts, not emotions The past three Maryland Outstanding Tree Farmers, two of which have gone on to win the Mid-Atlantic States Outstanding Tree Farm award have come from Garrett County. All of us were under the direction of state foresters which is a good indication of the advice we received. My forestry through wildlife approach on our Tree Farm has added to and increased the wildlife on the land. Timber stand improvement has a double meaning; more wildlife and quality saw logs.

The reason for "rare and vanishing species of plants and animal life" is improper land management. Ruffed grouse were vanishing and in a few years would have been rare if it were not for the forest management plan in effect on my land. Certain species of wildlife require clear-cuts. It would be nice if all birds and animals required the same habitat, but they don't. In the case of grouse, they need three types of forest habitat to survive.

In closing, I urge you to take the time to write Donald Mac-Lauchlin, Director of Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service in support of the state foresters in our area.

Sincerely, C.W. "Sonny" Newhall Mid-Atlantic States Outstanding Tree Farmer

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the articles in the June 25th issue of The Republican that dealt with the Puzzley Run

Timber sale. But, before I start, I must comment on the first paragraph of the Editor's article on the timber sale entitled, "Another Peat Controversy?" This paragraph (and the entire article) s obviously inflammatory. I guess the owners of that peat company were crying all the way to the bank! Do any of you local people know how much they got per acre for that bog? I kind of doubt that you'll be selling any of your land for that price! I am not saying that the peat company didn't deserve it, but implying that they were totally abused because of that Puzzley Run. Many of you may not even know where this area is. There is not another place quite like it on state land in Garrett County. It is a dynamic, mature forest on its way to becoming an amazing old growth forest. Old growth forest. Some like to call them "over-mature," implying it no longer has value - no longer has economic value. Its full value may not be realized until controversy is just plain wrong.

our children or their children can go there and be inspired by management plan for Savage an impressive forest that is in an ecological condition more closely to the way nature intended it. Managing this area for timber production is counter to this intrinsic value. Does everyone in this county really believe that the economic value of everything is its only important value? I don't think so. short-sighted and shallow this idea is. There are thousands of acres on our state forests that are, and should be, intensively managed for timber and wood fiber production. Puzzlev Run is an area that's long-term value will prove to be more important than periodic economic gain from timber production, and this value will increase with age Puzzlev Run is an excellent area to just leave alone. This is so nice. not an irresponsible management decision. However, those that only view forests as agricultural products may think otherwise. That's where statements like "grossly in need of stand is severely overstocked' come from. The issue is not the credentials of our state foresters. The timber management plan for Puzzley Run is well conceived, and does represent "sound forest management" as is stated in the newspaper

article. However, the point here is that even the most sound plan cannot guard against the problems associated with road building on 40 degree slopes, which much of Puzzley Run has. Approximately five miles of roads are called for to implement the harvest plan on these steep slopes. Sound forest management should not be confused with ecology. The statement in the newspaper article which says that this timber harvest plan will improve and strengthen the ecology of this forest is ludicrous! Perhaps what was meant was that this plan will make the area more productive for future timber harvests. This might be a valid statement, but it's quite misleading to the general public, not to mention terribly anthropocentric, to say we can improve a forest's ecology by managing it for timber production. Ecology encompasses the intricate nutrient cycles and interrelationships of all of the life forms in a forest. For instance, periodic tree blowdowns are part of the ecology of Puzzley Run and is one of the reasons for its dynamic character. Over the many, many years of this forest's life these decaying blowdowns represent a rich source of nutrients that go back into the forest soil. This is a major contributor to the ric diversity of wildflowers which grow in Puzzley Run. Now, to harvest these blowdowns may make good economic sense, but it does not improve the ecology of this forest, it degrades it.

The most awe-inspiring forest

you will ever go to will not be one that is managed for wood fiber production.

Like the articles which appeared in The Republican, I too urge the local citizens to contact DNR officials. But, tell them to leave Puzzley Run alone.

To the Editor: The location of good daycare personnel and facilities is a constant concern for working parents. During the fall of 1986, a Developmental Learning Center opened that offers a program to meet both the social children. This daycare center is located on South Street behind the old Accident Elementary School

Our son attended this center from March to Mid June of 1987. While under the experienced direction and loving care of Mrs. Eva Jean Maust, he was introduced to a non-rigid, independent and social learning atmosphere. Along with our son, we, the parents, reaped the benefits of this program. Our son shared information on different discovery themes, instructed us in preparing simple science experiments, taught us many songs and finger plays, and decorated our house with a that these learning experiences plus the socialization with other children have aided in his preparation for kindergarten. We highly recommend the Accident Developmental Learning Center to parents who work full-time or to those who might be looking for a part-time social setting for their children.

It is our understanding that the center will again open at the end of August with extended hours. Children 2-6 years are eligible to attend. Any questions could be answered by Mrs. Eva Jean Maust at 826-8478 or Community Action at 334-9431.

Sincerely. Stephen and Sheila Russell

To the Editor: The Garrett County Health Department has been providing two types of car safety seats for residents of Garrett and surrounding counties for a nominal fee with Project KISS-Kids in Safety Seats. The seats are to be returned when they are no longer needed for the child. Unfortunately, there are a number of "lost" seats. If you should have one of these "lost" seats or perhaps you know someone who has one of the Project Kiss seats. PLEASE return it to the Garrett County Health Department as soon as possible. We need the seats to protect other children in our county.

Car accidents are the leading cause of death in children. It doesn't have to be a "crash" to cause serious injury to a child. In fact, a sudden stop or swerve can cause harm to your child. You may be a good driver, but you cannot depend on a stranger. Having and using a car safety seat on every trip can prevent serious injury to your child. The "right" seat is the one that is suitable for your child's age and size and is easy for you to use in

Jelly Fallacy Begs Again by R. Craig Speicher

Today, sitting in my morocco leather chair - purchased with my $100,000 annual salary - I recalled the Biblical parable of the rich camel that wanted to go to needle heaven through the eye of a tornado. Or is it the camel that goes through the eve of a needle easier than a rich man to heaven? Whichever, God seemed to say: "Tell everyone interested in beaven to dump all their stocks. bonds, credit cards and tooth fillings on your television ministry, c/o Rev. 'Jelly Belly' Fallacy, preferably within the next five minutes.

So, as you might guess, this is the Most Important Letter I have written you. More important that the Most Important Letter Ever I sent you last month. Even more important than the Most Important Letter Ever I'm sending you next month.

You see, without me, this great country of ours is going down the tubes: The tubes carrying sin, fear, doubt and IRS lawyers into our accounting office THIS VERY SECOND!

Are you with me? I hope, because I am deeply GRIEVED by this heavy message (boo hoo hoo hoo hoo, sniff sniff, boo hoo hoo hoo, DARN! There goes another silk tie! Third one this week!)

Yes, the truth is if I don't hear from you by 10:00 a.m. vesterday, we just might have to splash a whole bottle of Liquid Paper correction fluid on your name, in our list of Precious Prosperous Pray and Pay Partners. Is that what you want?

Yes, I am making ONE FINAL EFFORT to save the continental United States, maybe Hawaii and Alaska too, but unless I get ten million dollars SOON, I can never again make ANOTHER One Final Effort, and just where would God be then! Perhaps you are wondering, "If Jelly Fallacy needs money so badly, why is he sending me this letter by costly PRONTO PRIORITY mail?" Because our public relations man says that the only way God can get your attention in this "do or die" matter is to make you feel so guilty that if you don't contribute after getting an expensive junk mail letter, you'll wet your big toe and stick it in a light socket.

Yet, in my humblest of humble hearts, I know you will help me. You, my loyal follower, my lifelong friend, my cherished check writer. Yes, YOU, Mr. . . . uh . . . what was your name again?

With your life savings, I have already built an enduring tribute to Almighty God: A college touting my theology; a television series starring Yours Truly; my own annotated Bibles stamped with my sincere name in fake gold; and two books, 'Huckstering - An Art' and "Lassie, Get Lost.'

Our Turn

by Pam Ashby

There she was - matted hair, permanently soiled face, an eve that sometimes sticks shut, gnarled fingers that once served as teething implements and one leg dangling be a mere thread.

I went about my work trying to ignore her one-eyed stare, but she wouldn't relent. Who had propped her up on the dining room chair anyway? I put down my pen and picked her up, ever so gently, cradled her in my arms and began singing a lullaby.

She had once been the apple of my daughter's eye, a constant companion. Where Annie went, "Drowsy" went - to grandma's house, to Sunday school, to playschool, and always to bed with

My heart ached as I remembered the terrible night 'Drowsy' had disappeared. We searched every inch of the house, but to no avail. A fitful child finally slept from the exhaustion of crying and a broken heart. These are the times a mother feels helpless, so helpless.

At about 1 a.m., I was struck with an uncontrollable urge to search the yard and the field beyond, if necessary. Never having strating equipment and gotten over my fear of the dark, it was pure maternal love that sent me out into the unknown, early morning blackness. At that Other food booths and activhour, the backyard is not the inviting place it is in the light of day. ities throughout the day will in-Shadows become ghosts and bushes become fierce, stalking ani--Habitat for Humanity: fish-

My protection was a flashlight, an old broom and the constant uttering of prayer, "Please, God, let me find that doll before I'm swept away into the dark corners of that menacing lilac bush."

There she was — in the sandbox looking cold and vulnerable. I scooped her up and ran for my life to the safety of my brightly-lit Inc.: hot, buttered popcorn and Mountain Top Youth for

She didn't open her eyes, but a smile crossed her face as she unconsciously hugged the familiar object I had placed in her bed. They were both safe and loved and they knew it.

I don't remember when "Drowsy" ceased to be Annie's side kick. Was she four or five? I just can't remember. I only know that tonight wasn't the first time that lifeless object had haunted

I do still feel an unexplained sense of relief when younger children come to visit and play with "Drowsy." She takes on human qualities when she is stroked by tiny, curious hands — when she is loved once more.

We've given away many old toys in this house over the years, but somehow, "Drowsy" always escapes the "needy bag." How can an inanimate object become so important in our lives? Perhaps it's because they give us so much joy and little pain (except when they're lost!). Or maybe it's because we continue to multiply with children and grandchildren who are capable of giving so much love and care and life to something even as insignificant as an old, torn and tattered doll.

I suppose that's why my mother kept my "Regal Beagle" all those years and gave it to her first grandchild. The years had given her wisdom to know that each tiny set of hands clutching that forlorn, droopy-eared puppy would give it new life.

Sewer Tap Moratorium

Discussion of the moratorium on sewer taps disclosed that there are probably 500 or 600 equivalent users on the waiting list for sewer taps now. A study is being done by Morgan France of Franklin Associates in Oakland to determine if there is excess capacity in the system. This study will probably be based on capacity during one of last year's holidays.

Lake Management Eric Schwaab, the new manager of Deep Creek Lake for the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service reported on the lake carrying capacity study, saying that there has been a delay in awarding the contract for the study, and that he is now waiting for approval by the State Board of Public Works which meets on July 1. Schwaab encouraged all property owners to provide input by answering the mailed survey, and said there would also be surveys taken on the buffer strip and the lake itself. He announced that a series of public meetings will be scheduled after the study is completed.

Aubrey Johnson, chairman of the Boating Safety and Inventory Committee, reported that there have been no serious accidents on the lake yet, however, he said the summer has just begun. He also reported that there are three patrol boats and five officers on the lake this summer. He also stated that a new record was set for boat inspections last weekend with 152 boats inspected.

Newsletter

According to Bob Squibb, chairman of the Newsletter Committee, there will probably be four newsletters this year plus a membership drive. One member suggested that the newsletter remind members Schwaab reported that on that dues should be paid on the calendar year. Squibb stated will be held at Garrett Comthat he wants input for the newsletter. David R. Enlow, 44, Terra Alta, was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, by the MSP Medevac helicopter and was admitted to the hospital. He has since been released.

The accident occurred at 8 p.m. on private property off Trap Run Road when Enlow was operating the 1986 Honda ATC-350X and, while traveling up a steep hill, the engine stalled and the vehicle drifted backwards.

According to investigating officer, Tfc. G.R. Chaney, when Enlow attempted to stop the vehicle, it upset and landed on top of him.

Another accident that occurred early Friday afternoon resulted in a Bittinger woman being taken to Meyersdale Community Hospital (Pa.) where she was treated for injuries and released.

Maxine E. Legeer, 55, was a passenger in a 1987 Buick Skyhawk being operated by Robert H. Legeer, 61, also of Bittinger, when the car was struck by a second vehicle Continued on Page A-13

AN EXHIBIT BY THE CHARLES P. "CHIP" EVANS FAMILY will be held during the month of July at the Fine Arts Gallery in the Administration Building at Garrett Community College. The exhibit features mostly oil and water color pieces by Chip and his daughters, Rebecca McClive and Alison Geroski and is open to the public. The gallery will also be open during the performances of "Harvey," a comedy in three acts and part of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Pictured above and below are two of the pieces in the exhibition by Chip Evans.

The White United Methodist out Rt. 560 on the White Church opened next year at Vacation Road closed their Vacation Bible School. Bible School (VBS) Sunday with a program and balloon launch. Between noon and 1 p.m., over 80 balloons were launched by students, teachers and helpers, while some of the congregation watched. There were 77 balloons with tags that included the VBS theme, "Hallelujah! Jesus is King," a name of one person attending Bible school, the church name, the director's address and two phone

The idea for the balloon launch was conceived by the Director, Kathy Lilly; Rev. Kenneth Montgomery, pastor; and Charlotte Mousch, teacher. Rev. Kenneth Montgomery picked up the balloons and helium for the event. Photographs were taken by Allen Lil-

By Monday afternoon, the director had learned that two balloons had already been found. The first balloon was found Sunday at about 5 p.m. by Alexis Carroll of Rippon, W.Va., about six miles south of Charles Town. Mr. Carroll said he recently had a calling to go into the United Methodist Church ministry.

The second balloon was found Monday at about 9 a.m., when Jeff Rain of Derwood (Md.) went to work in a hayfield. The balloon that Rain found was Todd Riley's.

The White Church VBS also buried a time capsule Thursday evening after a week of classes. The students and teachers wrote a covenant of three ways they will try to be faithful to Jesus. The capsule will be

During the week the students learned about hymns from the VBS puppet, Praise Pal. The lessons this year were centered around the miracles of Jesus.

Kathy Lilly noted her appreciation to all who helped with Bible school and the balloon launch, especially the teachers, Barb Boyce, Sue

In addition, they were required to form a top and apply plastic laminate as a finished material. Contestants were judged on the basis of accuracy, as determined by comparison to industry specifications, and on workmanship, including the proper use of tools and equipment. Speed of performance and proper safety practices were also significant factors in the judging procedure. Technical committee members for the cabinetmaking and millwork contest, those who develop the projects included in the contest, acquire necessary equipment, and obtain qualified people to act as judges, were: Gerald A. Beer, Brodhead-Garrett: James Bates, Power Tool Institute; C.E. (Pete) Newton, State Department of Education; James Ramsey, Powermatic Houdaille, Inc.; and William Winter, Architectural Woodwork Institute. Serving on the local committee for cabinetmaking and millwork were: Scott McMullen, Sandbothe Assoc. Woodworking, Inc., chairman; Earl Dirks, Teak Wood Cabinets; L. Duane Griffiths and Bruce Jackson, Pittsburg State University; and Jerry Allen and Bill Raynord, Allen Millworks.

Also competing in the national VICA Skill Olympics from Southern High School was Warren Livengood, in the Display category.

The 2.500 students - working against the clock, one another, and themselves - proved their expertise in job skills such as electronics technology, precision machining, medical laboratory techniques and culinary arts, and in leadership skills, such as extemporaneous speaking and job interview.

Fishing for a higher-yielding investment?

Don't forget the added risks!

There's an old saying that you've heard many times: "The greater the reward, the greater the risk." This is certainly true in the financial world — the higher the rate, the greater the risk

Also, there's more than one type of risk involved in many financial investments. Many "non-bank" investments have as many as four different types of risks you should be aware of before investing your hard-earned dollars.

MARKET RISK — The risk of price fluctuations in the securities market for both stocks and bonds.

PURCHASING POWER RISK - This risk. associated with inflation, is that your invested dollar may not buy as much in the future as it could today.

INTEREST RATE RISK — This risk generally causes the value of certain investments to move in the opposite direction of interest rates — as rates rise, the value decreases.

FINANCIAL RISK — This risk goes to the credit quality of an investment, and indicates that a higher rate should be paid where safety and security are sacrificed.

If you have been lured by the promise of a whopping interest rate" for a non-bank investment, we suggest you carefully assess the "boat-load" of risks that go along with it. Only then will you realize where your hardearned dollars should be invested — at First United National Bank & Trust.

GC Manta Rays Participate In Freestyle Meet

The Garrett County Manta Rays swim team opened its season last Wednesday night at Frostburg State College as one of six teams in a freestyle meet. The Manta Rays also participated last night at Frostburg in a backstroke meet, the results of which will be published next week.

Most of the Manta Rays in the June 24 event participated in the B Flight events, which is for newcomers and those who swim only in the summer league. A Flight competition is for those who took part in winter swim leagues or have won a trophy previously at the B Flight level.

One Manta Ray took two second places, however, in the A Flight girls junior division. Clementine Hopkins was the runner-up in both the 50 and 100-meter freestyle.

Manta Rays taking first places in B Flight events were: Dawn Scheffel, 50 and 100, girls Prep Division; Stephanie Friend, 25 and 50, girls Tyke Division; and Stephen Goralski, 50, boys Tyke Division.

Capturing second places for the Rays were: Brian Boal, 50 and 100, boys Junior Division; Patrick Skipper, 50 and 100, boys Prep Division; Josey Coviello, 50, girls Cadet Division; Aaron Buser, 25, girls Cadet Division; Matthew Sincell, 50, boys Tyke Division; Stephen Goralski, 25, boys Tyke Division; and Kevin Myers, 25, boys Mini-Tyke Division.

Earning third places for the Garrett County team were: John Snelson, 50 and 100, boys Prep Division; Kirk Myers, 50, boys Tyke Division; and Matthew Sincell, 25, boys Tyke Divi-

Other teams participating in the event were Cumberland YMCA, Cumberland Country Club, LaVale, Bel Air, and Romney Swim Club.

Federal Duck Stamp Cost Up

The Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service reminds waterfowl hunters and other conservationists that the price of the Federal Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp, known as the "Federal Duck Stamp," will rise from $7.50 to $10.00 this summer. Proceeds from the sale of these stamps are used by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service to buy wetland habitat for the National Wildlife Refuge System.

The price increase goes into effect on July 1, 1987, with the issuance of the 1987-88 stamp featuring a trio of redhead

Maryland's own state waterfowl stamp and print program produces the "Maryland Duck Stamp." This generates revenue for waterfowl release and habitat projects administered by the Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service. There is no price increase this year for the Maryland Duck Stamp. That is $6.00.

Sportsmen must purchase a hunting license, Federal Duck Stamp and Maryland Duck Stamp each year in order to hunt waterfowl in Maryland. In addition, growing numbers of people who do not hunt are buying Duck Stamps to support wildfowl and wetlands projects.

Federal Duck Stamp sales have averaged 1.8 million in recent years. Stamps are available from many post offices and National Wildlife Refuges.

Last year, about 67,300 Maryland Duck Stamps were sold.

WHATS THE PASSWORD?"

Canada Goose Hunting Season Proposal Noted

The Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service has announced its proposal for the 1987-88 Canada goose hunting season. The proposed season for the state's Western Zone is November 3-27 and December 7-January 20, inclusive (70-day season length).

Bag limit proposals are pending. During the summer months, state wildlife biologists will be reviewing goose production estimates for 1987. That information, collected from sources in Canada, helps wildlife managers determine Maryland seasons and bag limits.

Firm, final dates and limits are set each year in late summer by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service. That agency, in conjunction with Flyway biologist across North America, individual state governments and resource managers, coordinates goose management.

According to Donald E. Mac-Lauchlan, director of the Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service, "Maryland ties into the American/Canadian network with a constant exchange of scientific information and con-resulted in a five-year-old servation strategies. Planning Oakland boy being taken to in advance helps protect the geese, provide recreational opportunities of many sorts, and engenders the rich natural resource base of Maryland."

Resource manager, Larry Hindman, administers management action for all migratory birds in the state. Hindman and his staff evaluate complex and ever-changing facts about Canada geese - natural history and habits of the birds; legbinding survey data; previous harvest figures; recent clutch and brood size counts; estimates of survival rates: management objectives; and the number of geese that biologists would like to see in the state. These help create an annual working framework for goose management in Maryland.

Hindman says that, because of a late Eastern Canadian spring, Canada goose resting activity will probably be delayed in 1987. Brood sizes will be smaller. That means fewer young geese are expected to fly with parent birds to Maryland

Reinforcing last year's waterfowl studies with new data and conclusions, Maryland state wildlife biologists maintain that the Atlantic Canada goose population has stabilized and is de-

HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

It will soon be harvest time. Homegrown produce is generally higher in vitamins and minerals than fresh produce from the grocery if you pick your vegetables at their prime. When foods look and taste ripe, they are generally at their peak nutritionally. The key to main taining nutritional value and quality is to use them promptly. The general rule is to can, freeze, or dehydrate fruits and vegetables within four hours after harvesting. The University of Maryland Extension Service has free brochures to help you can or freeze your produce safely. Stop by their office on the lower level of the Courhouse. Monday through Friday, from 8:30-4:30, so you will be able to enjoy the "fruits" of your labor all year long.

FREE FIRST AID GUIDE

Get ready, get set for fun but be careful. To make your summer even safer, carry a first aid guide on your travels. Take-A-Long Picnic Foods

BASIC MIX: (Yield: 11: cups)

- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
- cup dairy sour cream 112 teaspoons Worchestershire sauce

Beat cheese, sour cream and Worchestershire sauce in a large mixing bowl until well blended. To make sandwich, use specified or other kind of bread; spread each piece lightly with I teaspoon softened butter. Use 14 cup mix per sandwich, spreading 2 tablespoons of basic mix on each slice of bread. Add one of the following variations to one slice and close with second slice. Wrap each sandwich individually in plastic wrap.

HAM: Spread 2 tablespoons drained crushed pineapple on one slice rye bread, top with 1 oz. slice of ham. Close. May be frozen.

Liver Sausage: Place 2 thin slices of liver sausage on one slice bread; cover with pickle relish. Close. May be frozen if pickle relish is omitted.

Peanut Butter: Mix 1 tablespoon creamy peanut butter into 1/4 cup Basic Mix. Spread on two slices whole wheat bread. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon raisins on one slice. Close. May be frozen.

BLT: Place three strips of crisp bacon on one slice bread, top with sliced cherry tomatoes (4 whole) sprinkled with seasoned salt. Close. Add lettuce to sandwich just before eating.

4 servings

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken (21/2 to 3 lb.), cut up
- 34 cup cracker crumbs 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 cup finely chopped nuts
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 4 cup (12 stick) butter, melted

Coat chicken with combined crumbs, cheese, nuts and salt. Dip in combined eggs and buttermilk mixture. Coat with crumbs again. Place in 13 x 9-inch baking pan. Drizzle with butter. Bake at 375 F. for 1 hour to 1 hour and 10 minutes or until chicken is tender. Cool. Place in container with top.

Yield: 30

- 30 graham cracker squares
- 1/2 cup (I stick) butter 2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar

1/2 cup chopped pecans

Preheat oven to 350 F. Break graham crackers in half and place close together on baking sheet. Combine butter and brown sugar in a 1-quart saucepan; stir over low heat until butter and sugar are melted. Stir in nuts. Drop mixture on crackers: spread slightly. Bake 8 minutes. Cool on baking sheet for 5 minutes, then remove to wire rack to cool completely. Store in tightly closed container.

> FROSTY APPLE DRINK Yield: 112 quarts

- 1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
- 1 quart chilled apple juice
- 4 teaspoon cinnamon 14 teaspoon nutmeg

Place vanilla ice cream, half the apple juice, and spices in blender container; cover. Blend well. Add remaining apple juice; blent until smooth. Pour into chilled thermos containers. Shake or stir before serving.

Maintain Your Cool With These Food Take-Along Tips

Whether your outing is a short jaunt or a long haul, preparing meals will be easier if you plan and pack well. It's especially important to take good care of perishable foods when you're on the road in hot weather. A little attention will prevent a lot of trouble in the form of spoilage or even illness.

Everyone has heard the admonishment: "Keep hot things hot and cold things cold." Well, it really is necessary and it really isn't hard. Here are a few tips from American Dairy Association for packing and caring for take-along foods so they stay fresh - and safe.

First, be aware of which foods cause problems. These are: foods that have already been cooked; uncooked meats, fish and poultry; and anything containing eggs and dairy products. Keep these foods at 40°F, or below until it is time to serve or prepare them. Then, if they are to be eaten hot, make sure they are heated thoroughly.

The simplest guideline to follow is that if a food must be refrigerated at home, it must be kept cold outside the refrigerator. Of all the things going on your trip, pack perishable foods last. Take them straight from the refrigerator or freezer to an insulated ice chest or cooler. Technically, an ice chest is a metal or heavy plastic container with a tightfitting lid; a cooler is made of plastic foam. For long trips, an ice chest is preferable because a cooler doesn't provide as much

- You can pack foods in crushed ice or use "canned ice," a nonwater liquid in plastic packages. Freeze the "canned ice" solid and place it in the ice chest, which it will keep cold several days. It gives off no moisture as it melts and can be refrozen.
- · If you don't want to spend the money for this product, try making your own ice blocks. This works especially well for long camping trips. Fill clean, half gallon milk cartons with water; freeze and use to keep your foods cold. When the ice melts you have cold drinking
- · Another dual-purpose method of keeping foods cool that also saves space on a long trip is to freeze meats or poultry solid and use them as ice blocks. If frozen solid, chicken parts will defrost in an ice chest in a day or two, ground beef, fish and steak

- · To keep milk extra cold on a short trip, freeze milk as ice cubes, then add them to a widemouthed thermos filled with fluid milk. They will not dilute the milk like cubes made from
- · Butter will stay fresher during a long trip if first frozen in its original wrapper, then stored in an ice chest surrounded by other frozen foods. To use, remove just what you need then to fifteen minutes beforehand.

To make packing easier:

- · Buy or pack the smallest portions/containers of food that will still be enough for the outing. such as condiments, sauces, perishables and canned goods.
- · Pack anything that might be damaged by water - in the cooler or in the rain - in moisture-proof bags or containers. Empty cottage cheese cartons are excellent for this. If you take foods such as mixes, dry cereals and powdered milk in containers other than their original boxes, be sure to pack the mixing directions too.

On a journey of several days. check the ice level each evening before stopping, so it will be simpler to purchase more ice if needed. Drain the water from the chest every night to prevent damage to contents.

How can you tell if the interior of your ice chest is staying below 40°F? The only accurate way is to pack a small thermometer with the food. An old desk-type wrapped in a plastic bag will do. Without a thermometer, you can make sure foods are safe by keeping perishables always packed in ice and by opening the chest only infrequently, removing everything for

So as you map out your next trip, keeping track of the weather. routes and lodging, put aside some time for "provisions." With a small amount of caution and care, you can have wholesome, delicious meals . . . no matter how far you roam.

Lighten Up Summer Meals With A Low Sodium, Low-Calorie Vegetable Mold

Pretty as a picture, Chilled Mixed Vegetable Mold makes a refreshing side dish.

Mixed Vegetable Mold takes advantage of the crisp seasonal vegetables available by teaming them up with "VS" no-salt-added vegetable juice and unflavored gelatin. With only 39 $\,$

Mixed Vegetable Mold

- 2 packages unflavored gelatin 3 1/2 cups "V8" no salt added vegetable juice
- I tablespoon lemon 1/4 teaspoon fennel seed
- 14 teaspoon garlie powder
- 1/2 cup cooked peas 1/2 cup chopped cooked asparagus
- 1/2 cup shredded carrot 1.2 cup chopped cucumber Mayonnaise or plain vogurt

In 2-quart saucepan sprinkle gelatin over 2 cups "V8" juice to soften. Over low heat, heat until gelatin dissolves, stirring occasionally. Add remaining "V8" juice, lemon juice, fennel and garlie powder. Refrigerate until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. In 5-cup mold, for garnish place 2 tablespoons peas in decorative design in bottom of mold. Meanwhile, gently fold remaining peas, asparagus, carrot and cucumber into gelatin mixture. Pour into mold. Cover; refrigerate until set, about 2 hours. Unmold gelatin onto chilled platter. Serve with mayonnaise or plain yogurt. Makes

Booklet Shows How To Lessen Cancer Risk In Barbecuing

Outdoor cooking has become a summer tradition for many Americans. The charcoal or gas grill is now a common fixture in most backyards. But recent stories about health risks associated with barbecuing have made many people wonder just how safe this popular form of food preparation is.

According to the American Institute for Cancer Research, there is very little health risk in our traditional outdoor barbecue, as long as it is done in moderation. While the Institute does note that there have been increased cancer risks associated with consumption of grilled foods, this increase occurs mainly in countries where cooking over charcoal or open fires is the principal means of preparing food and where daily consumption of such foods is considered normal.

For most Americans, the summer barbecue should be a time of enjoyment To help make it so, and to do it in a way which minimizes cancer risk, the Institute has prepared a booklet called "Facts You Should Know About Outdoor Cooking." Disney's too cute 'Not Just Human'

By Connie Passalacqua

Honk if you love Alan Thicke - and if you do, stop

The much-maligned former talk-show host, who was subsequently "redeemed" with the unexpected success of his ABC sitcom "Growing Pains," is at it again No. not chatting, but again playing an all-Amerian dad with an all-American case of the cutes in "Not lust Human" (The Disney Channel, July 11).

Cute? To start with. Thicke plays Dr. Jonas Carson (note the talk-show humor in the name), a brilliant research scientist who invents a lifelike computerized android named ute can you get? - Chip. The teen android, played by Jay Underwood, is ostensibly supposed to keep his

To get away from the clutches of his greedy toymanufacturer boss, Gordon 'Boom Boom" Vogel (Joe Bologna), whose latest idea for a war-toy line is attack pets, Carson moves his famly to another town. Although he has programmed Chip with a 12th-grade education, he inexplicably enrolls Chip in the 11th grade, and gets a job as a science teacher to keep an eye on his invention. Although Chip is programmed to be superhuman, he takes things too literally. When a student tells Chip to "Step on it." Chip does - with his large foot. Dad has a lot of interference-running to do.

This basically good-hearted movie is unfortunately a throwback to the Disney movies of the '50s. Chip's high school has to be the straightest in America, unmarked by spandex, headphones or Reeboks. Some scenes are almost 10 minutes long - this in the age of 'Pee-wee's Playhouse." It takes the first half-hour alone to establish that Chip is indeed an android.

Jay Underwood, who starred in the critically acclaimed but short-lived film The Boy Who Could Fly,' is charming as Chip. Although he's required to jerk his neck a la Jeff Bridges in "Starman" to show his 'androidness,' he plays the role with some humor. But Thicke's case of the cutes is acute. So cloying is he, you osed to keep his almost wish he were back Becky (Robin singing with his rock band on "Thicke of the Night."

The movie was the first acting role for the ex-wife of the former prime minister, and the press, according to Kanner. was gunning for Trudeau af ter growing weary of her jet-set notoriety. One critic called it "an eminently forgettable performance."

to the movie's defense after its Filmex debut, saying observers feel that Kanner's film was attacked (in Canada) mostly for featuring Trudeau rather than for cinematic reasons. It appears the world premiere at Filmex provided a more obsetting for evaluation.

TV viewers can judge for themselves when CTV airs "Kings and Desperate Men" on Monday, July 6. They just might find that Canadian criticism of the film was unjustified Trudeau has only a few lines, hardly enough to even warrant attention. As the wife of an alcoholic radio talk-show host (Patrick McGoohan) who's being held hostage by terrorists, she spends most of the movie sitting around looking morose. "Kings and Desperate Men' isn't going to win any prizes, but it's a passable thriller that hardly seems to have warranted the initial response

'Boston Blackie' began career in silent films

By Toni D'Amato

Can you give me some information about an old series called "Boston Blackie," including the name of the actor who played the title character? M.L., Gaylord, Minn.

Boston Blackie" was a TV detective series that ran from 1951 to 1953. A total of 58 episodes were made. The series starred Kent Taylor as Boston Blackie, Lois Collier as his girlfriend/ helper Mary Wesley, and Frank Orth as Inspector Faraday. Boston Blackie was a hero of more than 12 films in the 1940s, as well as a radio series and magazine stories. Blackie was a dapper, re-Angeles. He made a habit of solving crimes before the police did. Blackie was known as "an enemy of those who make him an enemy, a friend of those who have no friend.'

The original character appeared in several silent films of the early 1900s. He also appeared in a featurefilm series in the 1940s, in which Chester Morris played the hero. During the 1940s, Blackie was also the hero of a radio show starring Morris and later, Richard Kollmar

PBS highlights 'American Masters'

By Evan Levine

When I was born, my mother asked the midwife. Is it a boy or a girl?" And the midwife said. Neither one.

William Wyler

With these words, Isaac Bashevis Singer, the 1978 Nobel Prize winner for Literature, begins the documentary that opens PBS's "American Masters' series on Monday, July 6. (Check local listings.) It is an anthology series of documentaries, each of which profiles one of America's native-born and or adopted "masters" of the creative arts. In addition to Singer, illustrator Maurice Sendak, pianist Artur Rubinstein and film comedian Charlie Chaplin will also be included William Wyler, who directed such classic films as "Jezebel" and mem bers of the Negro Ensemble Company are also profiled.

Rather than being heavy handed attempts at pure narrative, the documentaries show the artists working, talking, lecturing. Rare footage from Chaplin's films is used (these episodes are rebroadcasts), while Rubinstein and Wyler are each remembered from a unique perspective by their children. The episode on Singer, directed by Amram Nowack, also contains a great deal of humor. He is seen eating in the cafeteria on New York's Lower East Side that inspired

Titus Selected President-Elect Of State Bar

Rockville attorney Roger W. Titus, also a resident of Thousand Acres, Deep Creek Lake, was named presidentelect of the Maryland State Bar Association during its 92nd Annual Meeting held June 10-13 in Ocean City. A partner with Titus & Glasgow law firm, Titus will automatically assume the office of MSBA president in 1988-89 when the association's newly elected president Cleaveland D. Miller completes his

"Roger has a good knowledge of the bar association and is well-known to lawyers across the state," said Miller. "He will have his fingers on the pulse of what the membership wants and be responsible to them." When he becomes president in 1988. Titus plans to elevate professionalism among the legal profession, improve the image of lawyers, and promote increased interaction with other organizations including business, community, civic and religious groups. "I would like to get the message out to the public that we are a profession and what that means," Titus explained. "We need to get out the good news about lawyers, not just the bad news.

Swallow Falls Park To Host Benefit Concert

For All is scheduled to play a benefit concert on the 4th of July at Swallow Falls State Park. A table will be set up for donations that will be sent to the American Cancer Society.

Free For All, formed just this year, hails from Westernport. The band members include Brett Downey, Westernport, as lead vocalist; Stuart Welsh of Beckley, W.Va., on guitar; Joe Yost, Frostburg, also on guitar; Tony Fazzalore, Keyser, W.Va., on drums; and Dave Beagely, Cumberland, on bass guitar. The band plays a variety of hard rock tunes, including their own songs which will appear on their upcoming demo tape. There will be a special group of guest artists playing as an opening act.

Park Naturlist Joan Norman has also planned a variety of activities for the 4th, including games for children such as a sack race and an egg and spoon contest. Prizes will be given. A campfire will be available for hot dog and marshmallow roasting. Admission is free.

Existing park regulations will The newly-formed band Free be strictly enforced. Mike Whitmer, seasonal park ranger at Swallow Falls, will serve as master of ceremonies. The cook-out and games start at 4 p.m. and music starts at 5:30 p.m. at the Swallow Falls Amphitheater.

Gospel Music Concert Slated In Terra Alta

A sacred gospel music concert, entitled, "A Little Bit of Heaven," will be held Sunday, July 12, at 7:30 p.m. at the Terra Alta (W.Va.) Whitedale Brethren Church.

The "Singing Hetrick Family" will be featured at the free concert. A freewill offering will be taken. The public is invited to attend, according to a church spokesman.

annimmen and a second 'FLUSTRATED!" new language and ab-

Several years ago, a new word began to surface in the daily usage of the English language. It seemed to be a most descriptive word combining the words "flustered" and

'frustrated" Interestingly, to those of us in real estate, this word describes clearly a feeling we see homeowners experiencing quite often. It results from taking on the responsibility of selling a home "by owner".

Why does it occur? How can it be avoided? First, imagine a completely different scenario which parallels this one about real estate. Imagine having an illness, for which a cure has already been discovered and documented. Then imagine attempting to cure the ailment yourself by finding your own cure. At times the cure would seem so close, vet unattainable, and frustration would occur. You would have to learn a complete

OUR GREAT SYMBOL Sunday 1 Peter 1:13-25 Monday 1 John 2:1-29 Tuesday 1 John 3:11-24 Wednesday Exodus 3:1-20 Thursday Exodus 4:1-17 Friday Exodus 6:2-13 Saturday Exodus One of the most treasured relics is the Liberty Bell. It is so-called because it was rung on July 8, 1776 to summons the citizenry for the terse announcement that the Declaration of Independence had been adopted. Today, it remains the greatest symbol of a nation free from tyranny in government and intolerance in religion.

.... that nation is America.

But one fact often overlooked is that when the historic bell was originally east its makers turned to the Bible, to Leviticus, for the words inscribed around its contour: "Proclaim Liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." What a beginning! What a heritage! What a privilege to be a son or daughter of Freedom's Land. What a blessing to be an American.

How great is our Symbol!!!!

MUCH MORE! July 5, 1987

Background Scripture: Romans 5:1-11. Devotional Reading: John 15:12-17. I've read this passage many times, but not until this moment have I been struck with the enor mity of what it requires of me. In fact, there are two things here that seem to be much more than I can handle.

Paul starts out well enoughassuring me of "peace with God," "access to this grace," and the "hope of sharing in the glory of God." To all of that I can say a hearty "Amen." But Paul doesn't stop there; he goes on to say: "More than that, we rejoice in our sufferings ...

REJOICE? BE GLAD? There have been many times when I have been able to see some blessing in my suffering, when I have learned some valuable lesson, or won some spiritual victory.

With Paul I have experienced that

"suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope "Furthermore, I know that in times of suffering, I too have known "God's love poured into" my heart "through the Holy Spirit." Nevertheless, I cannot truthfully say that in these times I have been "glad" or "taken delight," as my dictionary defines "rejoice" Of course neither have I ever "rejoiced" or "taken delight" when starting my daily exercise or dieting, no matter how good I know both of these are for my physical an experience on the basis of the short-term, rather than long-run results. If there is pain, fear or any iety. I judge the experience to be "bad," even if ultimately it turns out to be a blessing. Obviously, what I need to learn is to judge the experience in terms of its long range results. Life is more than the present moment. The second stumblingblock in this passage is even more threaten ing to me because of the enormity of its challenge. Paul tells us "Why, one will hardly die for a righteous man...But God shows his love for us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us. At first, I'm happy to note the wondrous dimensions of God's love and grace. How wonderful to know that "while we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son.'

ENEMIES & SINNERS

Yet, while I'm basking in the light of this revelation, it suddenly occurs to me that what God demonstrated through Christ, he expects also of us. We too are called to love others while they are "yet sinners" and be reconciled with God's "enemies." I might find it in me to forgive a neighbor who tells me he's sorry, but how can I forgive someone else before they have repented of their sins before they have stopped being the "enemy"?

No I don't have it "in me" to do that, but that is never the source of it. The source is no less than Christ himself: "much more, now that we are reconciled, shall we be saved by his life." If we let the resurrected Christ live within us the power to both rejoice in suffer ing and be reconciled to our ene mies can be ours. It is "his life in us alone that enables us to con template and experience Christ's "much more!"

Al Homburg, Carl Parker Among

Performers At Friendsville Festival

Two of the many entertainers scheduled to appear at Friendsville's Summer Festival VII on August 1 are Al Homburg and Carl Parker. This event is sponsored by the Town and Community Women, Inc. of Friendsville.

Al Homburg, "entertainer, musician, teacher, and folklorist," will appear two times during the day singing patriotic songs, folk tunes, and light tunes from Broadway shows.

Homburg worked out of Cumberland several years and is now located in Pittsburgh. He has taught in several high schools and colleges throughout the country. He makes concert appearances, appears in radio and has done some recording. He has had many articles and arrangements published.

Carl E. Parker will sing gospel music, both old and new, during the afternoon.

Taxpayers ID Numbers Required For Dependents

As a result of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, a taxpayer claiming a dependent who is at least five years old must include that dependent's taxpayer identification number on the taxpayer's return. For most individuals, this number is the individual's social security number. This new law is effective beginning with 1987 tax returns

If the dependent has a social security number, but the taxpayer does not know what it is, the taxpayer should contact a local Social Security Administration office.

To get a social security number, a dependent must have evidence of: (1) date of birth: (2) U.S. citizenship or legal alien status; and (3) identity. A public, hospital, or religious birth record is generally sufficient for the first two items. A school record and certain other documents can be used for proof of identity. For more information, taxpayers may ask at any Social Security Administration office for the free leaflet. "Applying for a Social Security Number.

Water Rescue Topic Of Park Safety Meeting

Water rescue was the topic of the Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls State Park and Potomac/Garrett State Forest safety meeting for the month of

Also attending were Ward Ashby, manager of Deep Creek Lake State Park, and Ernie Metz and Al Bourgeois, of the Forest, Park and Wildlife Office at Mt. Nebo

The group went to Herrington Lake, where various methods of in-water searches were practiced. The methods included the human chain and strip search. To add credibility and realism, a doll was submerged in the lake at undisclosed locations. The exercises were carried out under the direction of Daniel

Seventh-Day Adventists Hear Governor Moore

Almost 1,000 Seventh-day Adventists celebrated 100 years of church work in West Virginia and western Maryland last week, punctuated by visits from West Virginia Governor Arch Moore and Adventist world leader Neal Wilson, and accented by people in 1800's dress.

Among those in attendance were Donna Dodge, Don and Edie Sines, and Mary Jane Rounds, of the Mountaintop Seventh-day Adventist Church, Oakland.

Both Moore and Wilson visited on the final day of the nineday event, when the 33

Adventist churches of the Mountain View Conference presented plans for the future.

The previous weekend had featured people dressed in hoop skirts, bonnets, derby hats, and other clothes reminiscent of the 1800's. In addition more than 50 previous pasters and church officials returned, some of whom had worked in the Mountain View Conference as long as 40 years ago.

Attendance peaked on the two weekends, but more thn 200 people stayed throughout the week. They listened to sermons, attended seminars in healthful living, studied the Bible, and participated in a 6 a.m. exercise

Governor Moore told the Adventists, "I would like to take this opportunity to extend my deepest appreciation on behalf

Local Students Honor Flag At Fort McHenry

In Awards Day Programs throughout the Garrett County Schools, several students were presented awards provided by three community organizations. These awards were given to reward student excellence exemplified in the areas of citizenship related essay writing and/or history/social studies classes. Receiving the Daughters of American Revolution Essay Award were: Amy Shawley, Dana Sweitzer, and Sara Younkin of Accident Elementary School. Receiving both the county and district American Legion Award for essay writing was John Brodbeck of Dennett Road Elementary School. Fifth, eighth, and twelfth graders honored for their being the most outstanding history student for each of these grades in their respective schools were: Cynthia Marcus, Accident Elementary: Kimberly Miller and Jessica Morton, Bloomington; Cole Bauer, Broad Ford Elementary; Robert Zimmerman, Crellin Elementary; Jason Barr, Dennett Road Elementary; Chris Umbel, Friendsville Elementary: Robert Fritz, Grantsville Elementary; Staci Kisner, Kitzmiller Elementary; Jennifer Hamilton, Loch Lynn Elementary; Jamie Herrington, Red House Elementary; Shawn Spiker, Route 40 Elementary School; Susan Cupler and Eric Martin, Northern Middle School: Christine Chanev and Rebecca Few, Southern Middle School: Linda Oester, Northern High School; and Dale Bittinger, Southern High School.

As a reward for their achievement, the Garrett County Board of Education provided the funds, planning and chaperones to permit these students and one of their respective parents to attend the Annual Human Flag Day Ceremonies at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, Maryland. Fifteen of these students and several parents accepted the invitation to attend the ceremonies held on June 11. Plan-

MENTION THE UNMENTIONABLE

There has been a recent trend, particularly among psychologists, in discussing and writing about death. Rather than being seen as a morbid development. admission of death is actually considered rather healty, AND practical.

On the personal level, one can remove death from the list of unmentionable topics by talking openly and frank ly about funeral plans and making a Will. Including your family and loved one in such a discussion will offi mately do more to prevent pain and anguish than any discomfort saved by leaving them in the dark.

Naturally, if you are mar ried you should consult with your spouse. You might be startled to find out that he or she often thought about the subject but was afraid to mention it to you for fear of

The VCS theme for 1987 is "The Bible Adventure," which was developed to help students have been organized and class daily sing-a-long at 11:45 a.m. become more familiar with the Bible. All age levels will be exploring the same themes in the sessions. In addition to being given a broad overview of the Bible and its origins, students will explore the Bible as a source of history, and as the foundation of faith.

The Vacation Church School offering will be split equally between the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, plus, as in years past, a canned goods offering will be presented to the House of Hope.

These information for future reference changes have been introduced He to better define policy and verify MACS operating procedures. Comments and recommendations from the state committee and soil conservation districts will be considered prior to submitting regulatory modifications to the "Maryland Register.

ation and Conservation Service (ASCS) will be promoting the conservation provision of the Food Security Act through brochures and a poster mailout," Dave Mason, ASCS, announced. Mason hopes to work with all cooperating agencies to inform the agricultural community about new federal requirements. Farmers will be required to develop and implement a conservation plan to ensure their future eligibility for federal assistance programs.

Perlie Reed, state conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, announced that Maryland's Resource Conservation and Development budget for fiscal year 1988 had been doubled from $220,000 to $440,000

Internal Revenue Service rule conservation activities. This revision would require that farmers claiming deductions for the installation cost of conservation measures have a conservation plan in effect as a prerequisite. Reed noted his concern about the increase in district workloads which could

Farm Real Estate Values Differ

A recent report released by the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore indicated a significant difference in the value of farm real estate as reported by the bank and the value as reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. During the 1986 year, USDA figures indicated a three percent decrease in the average value per acre of farm real estate in Maryland, while bank data indicated a 10 percent increase in average value per acre. According to USDA figures 16 of the 48 contiguous United States showed an increase in farm real estate value including all states in the northeast except for Maryland.

According to R.J. Beiter, principal economic specialist, University of Maryland, the differences reported in value per acre of farm real estate for the different states is partially explained by the fact that the bank data included only raw land and the USDA data was the average per acre value of land and buildings. From this we might conclude that the farm as an ongoing enterprise is decreasing in value while farm land, probably for nonfarm use, is increasing in value.

In many cases the value of farm real estate may be the key to the financial dilemma of some farmers. A farm value on the basis of its nonfarm land use can easily lead a farmer into a precarious debt position. A corn field cannot be expected to return the same cash flow per acre as that same land occupied by a housing development or shopping center. Many lending institutions however are willing to make farm loans in excess of what corn production can pay

The farm real estate value reported by the USDA which includes buildings and improvements may relfect the farm use value as a viable farm enterprise. The value of raw land may or may not reflect the farm use value, but may be closer to

Crop Progress Normal

The week ended June 28 was the second consecutive week characterized mostly by scattered showers and a slow decrease in average moisture supcultural Statistics Service reported short to adequate topsoil moisture in most of Maryland. The mountain areas had adequate topsoil moisture. Subsoil moisture was short to adequate on average. The mid-Eastern Shore counties had short supplies of subsoil moisture. The number of days suitable for fieldwork averaged 6.5

Soybeans were 80 percent planted, the same as last year at the end of June and five percent behind the average. The most common insect in corn was the corn borer. Farmers had transplanted 98 percent of the tobacco, ahead of the 90 percent normally planted at this

Wheat, oats, barley and rye remained in good condition. Wheat was 95 percent turning color and 30 percent harvested. Wheat was still affected by scab and lodging. Barley was 100 percent turned color and 85 percent harvested, near normal seasonal progress.

Most of the apples and peaches were in good to excellent condition. Gypsy moths were entering the pupal stage.

The Maryland-Delaware Oil Overcharges Forage Field Day is scheduled for Wednesday, July 15, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at The University of Maryland Agronomy-Dairy Forage Research Farm near Ellicott City in Howard County. Field day activities will combine tours of research plots with field demonstration (weather permitting) of a new development in hay making equipment and a presentation and display of high tensile fencing materials.

The field tour will start promptly at 9:30 a.m. and conclude about 3:30 p.m. Research plots and other demonstrations to be highlighted include: Equipment Demonstrations Recent developments in hay-making equipment to aid drying are swath and windrow inverters. As with many farm implements, the concept and development of these machines began with innovative farmers. Kermit Yoder, a farmer in Garrett County, has developed a machine that will invert an eight-foot wide swath with minimal leaf loss. This same machine can also be used for windrowing hay. Weather permitting, swath inverting will be compared with tedding for reducing drying time. In the afternoon the swath inverter

Maryland farmers could be entitled to refunds worth hundreds of dollars as a result of overcharges on petroleum products they purchased between 1973 and 1981. Crude oil was under government price controls during that time, and some energy companies illegally charged more than they should

Farm Bureau, in conjunction with the Department of Energy, developed a refund request form specifically for farmers. Using the form, Maryland producers can document, or estimate, the total number of gallons used, and apply for a refund.

If no other supporting evidence is available, EOE allows farmers to estimate petroleum use by multiplying the average number of acres farmed per year by USDA; s national average of 23.8 gallons/acre/year of petroleum. Then multiplying that figure by 7.44 years.)acres/year X 23.8 X 7.44

Any producer who purchased 10,000 gallons of petroleum products or more between 1973 and 1981 should definitely file a claim. The refund will be between $.00008 and $.0015 per gallon. explained. Petroleum products purchased through cooperatives are not eligible for refunds. Coops already received refunds which are intended to benefit their farmer-patrons. "Tis is a time when every dollar counts in a farm operation. We hope farmers will take the time to apply for the refund they are

HEAD DANCERS - The position of Head Dancer is one of high honor. Head Dancers are selected not only for their dancing ability, but also for their personal qualities and actions. They lead each dance and other dancers wait respectfully until they begin dancing. The Head Man and Woman Dancers for the 1987 Pow Wow are Linda Tsonetokoy (above) and Joe McTigue. Linda Tsonetokoy, a resident of Maryland, is of Kiowa descent and was born in Oklahoma. She is a graduate of Haskell Institute and is presently working on a bachelor's degree in paralegal studies from the University of Maryland, Ms. Tsonetokov was last year's first place winner in the women's traditional dance category at the ATITCO Pow Wow and has served as Head Woman Dancer at a number of pow wows. The lovely beadwork on her outfit is a product of her skill in that exacting art. Head Man Dancer Joe McTigue is from Largo, Fla. He is a Kiowa straight dancer who is well known for his dancing ability and outstanding personality.

THE EAGLE ROCK SINGERS - The host drum at this year's AIITCO Pow Wow in McHenry, July 11 and 12, will be the Eagle Rock Singers. The group is a Northern Plains style drum of Native Americans and interested non-Natives from Northern Virginia and Maryland. The head singer and drumkeeper is Mike Bugelski, who has been singing for more than 25 years at Indian and non-Indian pow wows all over the country. Mike is assisted by his wife Lori, Matt Bugelski, Joe Howell, Will and Rob Jamieson, John McLean, Vince Mikolainis, John Moore, Jeff Ross, and Mark Baumgarner. The Eagle Rock Singers have been singing together since 1983. Individual members have traveled repeatedly to pow wows in Oklahoma and on the Northern Plains, where they have spoken and sung with accomplished singers from several tribes. Their repertoire includes many traditional Sioux songs, as well as some of the latest favorites from Montana, the Dakotas and Canada.

No matter what its size, the give-a-way has one basic purpose - to pass on and share with others. The give-away has come down from earlier days when a warrior returning from a raid would give away most, if not all, of his booty to those who were in need. Among Indians it is not the person who has the most goods who is respected, but the person who sees others in need and provides for them.

It is considered to be the heartbeat of the Creator and thus is the pulse of the People. As such, the drum is accorded much respect and honor. The majority of American Indian songs do not have lyrics as most people think of them. Those Indian songs with "lyrics" tend to be more like Haiku — short phrases sketching the idea of the song, which are repeated over and over. Traditionally, each song is usually sung through four times. Today, good ones may be repeated many times.

The pow wow will have plenty of good food. Among the favorites are Indian fry bread and Indian tacos. Fry bread recipes differ slightly from tribe to tribe, but all are basically a dough made from flour, a little salt and a little baking powder. The dough is stretched out and quick-fried in hot oil. It can then be eaten plain, sprinkled with powdered sugar or topped with honey. It can also serve as the base for an Indian taco - a stomach-filling masterpiece of fry bread, taco meat, chopped onions, lettuce and tomatoes, topped with shredded cheese. All Indian foods are eaten with lots of strong hot coffee!

Fry bread goes by many names - squaw bread, ghost bread, Indian bread, and has many variations. Here is Carolyn Strickel's famous recipe.

There are four basic types of dances at a typical pow wow (with allowances for different tribal styles). These are the men's traditional or straight dance, the men's fancy, feather or war dance, the women's traditional dance, and women's shawl dance. The fancy and the shawl styles are rapid and showy. The traditional and straight dances are sedate and slower. At almost any pow wow, one or more honor dances or "specials" will be held. These are songs and dances requested by individuals to mark a special event. It might be given for a birthday, for a son or daughter going into or returning from the military, to note the first time a child dances in the arena, or in memory of a deceased family member. Those who give the special are asking those present to share in the importance of the event.

A special begins with the sponsors asking someone to act as their speaker. The speaker calls for a song, explaining the nature of the special. Often a particular song having special significance to the individual is chosen. As the sponsors begin to dance around the arena, the speaker calls upon their friends and family to join them in the dance. Others fall in behind and at the end of the song, the other participants come forward and shake the hands of the sponsoring individuals, giving them a small sum of money (usually a dollar bill)

WAXY BUILD-UP Earwax, properly called erumen, is a normal secre ion found in the ear canal ubricate and protect. Some persons produce an excesive amount of cerumen which may harden and be ome impacted in the ear canal. This may be noticed as a blocking or fullness of the ear with a decrease in hearing. It may come on sud denly after swimming or showering as water causes the lump of wax to swell. The ise of cotton tipped ear swabs often acts to push the wax into a deeper part of the up against the eardrum. Many persons, in fact, inflict damage to skin lining the ear anal or to the eardrum it self while attempting to remove wax. This is dangerous practice. Earwax removal should be left of a

RESOLUTION OF BOARD OF LICENSE

COMMISSIONERS OF GAR-RETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, ADOPTION OF REGU-EMERGENCY LATIONS. The Board of License Commissioners of Garrett County, MD, Ann. Code Article 2B, Sec tion 159 (c) (6), like all such Boards throughout the State is charged by the law to regulate the sale, control, manufacture, distribution, transportatioin and storage of alcoholic beverobtain respect and obedience for the law and to foster and promote temper-ance, MD. Ann. Code Article 2B. Section 159 (a) (1). The Board has the power to regulate Section 1 (b) (1) and to enforce Section 1 (b) (2) and to create regulations Section 42(a).

Given these responsibilities, the Board finds it necessary to interpret law; and when the law is not plain or when different parts of the law are in conflict.

to narmonize those inconsis-tancies so as to best effectuate the perceived legislative intent. The Board is aware that cer-tain sections of House Bill 658 in conflict with existing statute and therefore finds it necessary to adopt regulations so as to carry out its duties with regard to the enforcement of

Further, the Board resolves that given the fact that: House Bill 658 was signed into law on June 2, 1987, less than two weeks before the annual re-newal process is to begin, and the Board did not receive copies of relevant Attorney General's Opinions until shortly before the Bill was signed that time is of the essence and that this emer-gency resolution and the following emergency regulations are called for.

1. The Bill seems to ignore the statutory provisions with regard to renewal of licenses by eliminating Class D licenses and creating new Class D On Sale and Class D Off Sale licenses without providing for licenses without providing for publication, opportunity for public hearing, etc.; as provided in Section 68. The Board, therefore, will assume the Legislature intended those applications, and publications the old Class D license will now result in the issuing of the two

2. The Bill provides for the issuance of Class D On Sale to establishments with over 75% of sales for consumption on the premises and the issuance of Class D Off Sale licenses to establishments with over 75% of gory a given license talls into based upon the most recent quarters surcharge data. The Board makes no finding, at this time, with regard to establish-ments which do not fall into either category.

3. The Board will issue renewed licenses, '87.'88, to persons upon payment of the enhanced fees called for by the Bill, as interpreted by the Atterney General in his letter to Governor Schaefer of May 28 1987, a copy of which is attached hereto. The Board will accept payments made prior to July 1, 1987, but will not require payment before that date, as the law does not become effective prior to that date. In no case will a license be issued before all applicable fees are paid.

ANY AND ALL PERSONS AGGRIEVED BY THE ADOPTION OF THE ABOVE RESOLUTION AND EMER RESOLUTION AND EMER-GENCY REGULATIONS MAY CONTACT THE BOARD, IN WRITING WITHIN THIRTY (30) DAYS, SO AS TO AR-RANGE FOR A HEARING WHERE SUCH GRIEVANCES MAY BE HEARD AND CON-SIDERED.

Dear Friends

My description does not do justice to this beautiful lakefront and lake access property. It must be seen! Lots offer complete privacy and measure an acre or more with 150 to 270 feet of lake frontage. Yet, it's only eight miles to the Wisp Ski area, and Oakland is conveniently located nearby for shopping. Sandy Beach is simply the perfect place for your dream vacation

Deep Creek Lake has always been known as "Maryland's Best Kept Secret", but I'm afraid the secret is out. Great property like this does not last long! I can't tall you how many times I've heard someone say. "I should have bought property at Deep Creek ten years ago!" Well, the time is now. There are only thirteen lakefront lots and nine lake access lots remaining. So call me soon for an appointment. I'm looking forward to hearing from you.

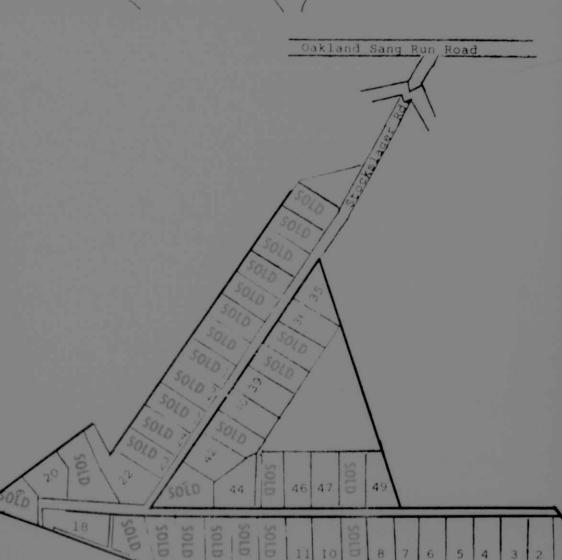

Sincerely

Susan Bell Listing Agent (301) 387-9072

U.S. Team Chooses Frontier Theme

The theme for the Whitewater World Championships of 1989 is "Frontier", the untamed, unconquered (because of its wild and rugged geography) as compared to the swift current, uncontrolled whitewater of the Savage River. The two go hand in hand — Whitewater races on the Savage River in the frontier environment of Western Maryland. It suggests achievement, pinnacle performance. The frontier is the most romantic and best known feature of America. The public will experience a back to nature environment. They will be attracted by the unspoiled environs of the Savage Valley virons of the Savage Valley.

Costumes of the period (back to the days of Daniel Boone) will allow those in attendance at the races to share in the idyllic past of the American Frontier.

The integrated, cohesive nature of the theme development will allow the sponsor to use his particular promotion and still insure identification between product and the 1989 races.

Distinguished Sales Associate of the Year

Leo O'Neill, President of the Garrett County Board of Realtors, announced today that William (Bill) G. Weissgerber, Jr. has been selected as Garrett County's Distinguished Sales Associate of the Year.

Selection for this award is based upon the following: Realtor Spirit, Professional Knowledge, Local Board Activity, Business Accomplishments, Civic Activity, and State and Local National Board Activity.

Bill is currently holding a position as Marketing Coordinator for A&A Realty/Better Homes and Gardens and handling real estate transactions throughout Garrett County, specializing in Deep Creek Lake. Although he is a very successful salesperson, he recognizes the importance of honesty and adhering above and beyond to the Code of Ethics in all of his dealings. Bill often presents "tips" in sales meetings and has conducted some "in-house" training sessions. His sales and listings sold volume in 1986 exceeded $6,800,000.

Mr. Weissgerber has attended and just completed in January, 1987, his GRI, (Graduate Realtor Institute) demonstrating a desire and determination to be professional and competent. He has also attended seminars, roundtable discussions, and meetings in San Francisco and Richmond, VA that were offered through Better Homes and Gardens real estate service.

He has been recognized by the Maryland Association of Realtors at their convention in Ocean City in June and eligible for the state award.

Bill currently resides on Mary Drive located in Mt. Lake Park, Maryland.

The 1986 Distinguished Sales Associate of the Year was Edisel (Ed) King, also a Marketing Coordinator for A&A REALTY/BETTER HOMES & GARDENS.

Canaan Valley, W. Va.

TIMBERLINE Four Seasons Resort is less than an hour's drive from Deep Creek Lake, in the middle of Canaan Valley, W. Va.

Visitors are being welcomed at the "Information Center" office located on Rt. 32, a short distance from Davis, W.Va. Welcome Center hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. each day throughout the summer.

TIMBERLINE Resort was purchased last year by Herz, Herz, Reichle Corporation with an initial investment of $5 million. It is now being transformed into a year-round development encompassing more than 2,000 acres with a state-of-the-art, full-service recreational facility. Under the leadership of general manager Lynn Janutolo and just in time for the 86-87 winter ski season, a new Borvig triple chair lift was installed in addition to the existing T-bar and rope tow giving a capacity of 3,000 skiers per hour. In a very short time, Mr. Janutolo combined 150 acres of skiable terrain, being served by 3 lifts over 12 trails. The acclaimed "Salamander Run", largest ski trail south of Vermont, is over 2 miles long and the most scenic trail in the region, plus it is bordered by the Dolly Sods National Wilderness.

Slopeside building lots were opened and surveyed last year and are adjacent to and in view of Salamander Run ski trail and Yoakum Run, a clear, falling mountain trout stream. They are the only slopeside real estate available in the region with "Ski in—ski out" access from your own mountain chalet. These lots are being developed with public water and sewer, private road, and can be purchased as unimproved sites or with a home built to your specifications, subject to architectural approval.

or with a home built to your specifications, subject to architectural approval. Timberline as a ski destination boasts Herz Mountain, with 1,084 feet of continous vertical at an elevation of 4,268 feet. There is 100 percent snow making over the entire ski trail system and skiers who were lucky enough to experience "Timberline" this winter raved about the fresh powder daily, whether it was natural or man-made, "it was close to Colorado snow."

Cross country nordic skiers also love Timberline, where they have purchased single lift tickets to reach the top of Herz Mountain to gain access to the famed Dolly Sods Wilderness. A new Timberline Nordic Center is planned for the upcoming ski season to accommodate this fast growing, popular sport.

At the base of Herz Mountain, next to the new triple chairlift, you will find the Herzwoods Condominiums. The first building is completed and SOLD OUT, and construction has begun on the next two buildings to be completed in the fall of 1987. Pre-sales are available on the remaining three buildings planned at this particular site. Prices start at $67,900 for the 2 bedroom, 1 bath units which are sold completely furnished right down to the linens and tableware-ready to enjoy or rent.

Governor Arch Moore, Jr. publicly committed the state to a paved road accessing Timberline with W.Va. Rt. 32 directly into the resort and has reaffirmed priority to Corridor H, a super highway access from the Balt/Wash, D.C., as well as a regional airport.

All of this is happening in nearby W. Va. and you're invited to see for yourself. Throughout most of the summer, on weekends during good weather conditions, the triple chairlift will be running to provide secenic views of the development and Canaan Valley. To confirm the ski lift schedule, just call 1-800-843-1751 or 304-866-4801

Continuing Education

At least 15 A&A Realty/Better Homes & Gardens agents recently completed a special educational offering presented by the W. Va. School of Real Estate. The 45-hour classroom sessions were conducted at the A&A Realty Headquarters in Deep Creek Lake over a 2-week period of time.

Instructors were Steve Schmidt and Judy Highschool from Morgantown, W. Va., co-owners of the W. Va. School.

These classes completed the prerequisite for additional licensing education to meet the West Virginia Real Estate Commission requirements for licensure. Now, nearly all of the staff of A&A will be licensed and able to market properties in both Maryland and West Virginia. Until this time, the West Virginia marketing was handled by the portion of the staff who had aiready fulfilled the West Virginia requirements.

The classes covered topics including standards and practices of real estate, appraisals, contracts and agency relationships.

The A&A Marketing Program

Marketing real estate is a very comprehensive program to be accomplished in an effective manner. The growth seen by A&A Realty/Better Homes & Gardens over the past three years is really based upon the overall marketing efforts implemented by the sales management staff consisting of Karen F. Spiker, Tom Graham, Bill Weissgerber, Jr., and Jan Shafer

The first step is pricing the property correctly. It is A&A's motto to try to secure the best price for the seller in the shortest amount of time.

Secondly, exposure of the property to active agents who actively work full time with buyers is critical. A "Caravan" of the property is arranged to be seen by the bulk of the A&A sales team and then the property is placed in the Garrett Board of Realtors Multi-list Service, whereby over 100 licensed agents have full access to the property information

A&A Realty/Better Homes & Gardens believes in two types of advertising—ads for the particular property itself coupled with general advertising relating to the services and market area that A&A services. The general advertising keeps a continuing flow of prosepctive buyers in contact with our offices and agents so that when the property they have been waiting for becomes available, a match between buyer and seller can occur right away.

A&A's general advertising has included the following:

Our National Media consists of Better Homes & Gardens TV advertising and Better Homes & Gardens print advertising.

Frequent ads are placed in the following regional magazines by A&A Realty/Better Homes & Gardens: Mid-Atlantic Country Magazine, Inside Maryland, The

Virginian, Cable Plus, and TV

Other regional newspaper advertising includes the Washington Post, The Baltimore Sun, and The Pittsburgh Press.

We are represented at several travel shows in regional malls, and several conventions.

The local advertising campaign includes The Republican, Value Guide, WXIE Radio Station, and Deep Creek Lake Vacation Guide. Most importantly our "own" A&A Review is printed a minimum of four times a year with a circulation of 20,00 copies each issue.

All of these methods of advertising coupled with the Better Homes & Gardens Home Marketing System can go to work for you now. Call us today: 387-4700, 334-9777 or 895-5058.

The Savage River — A Brief History

Just over 250 years ago, a group of men, sent by the King of England and Virginia's Lord Fairfax to survey the Potomac River, camped, cold and starving, at the mouth of a savage, raging river. It was November 29, 1736, and the group of 17 surveyors and assistants had been measuring and mapping the North Branch of the Potomac River since leaving Harpers Ferry early in October.

The tenth month was late in the year to start a journey into the mountains. However, the surveyors had hoped that by leaving late, the dangerous snakes which lived among the river rocks would be in hibernation. Delayed by many problems, and experiencing extremely difficult travel conditions through weather that was hard on both men and horses, the group moved on into the mountains to become the first white men ever to visit present-day Garrett County.

Representing the king were surveyors Major William Mayo and Robert Brooke; working for Lord Fairfax were Captain Benjamin Winslow and John Savage. The goal of this surveying team was to establish Lord Fairfax's estate with the King of England. After enduring the bitter cold, rain, sleet, and snow (two snowstorms hit during the month of October alone), the surveyors gave up horse travel and built a "cornue." That first canoe was completed and laun.hed on October 16. A second and a third was completed by October 22, and the party put all their provisions in the canoes and proceded to survey.

Upon reaching the mouth of the "raging river," their food supplies were exhausted and they were faced with starvation. According to a journal entry by one member of the party, they decided from necessity to kill and eat one of their own surveyors, John Savage, he being "the most worthless member of their party" as a result of failing eyesight.

But providence prevented that from happening, and supplies came just in the nick of time to save Savage. The "raging river" by which they were encamped was named in his honor, and the Savage River was therefore the first geographic feature in Garrett County to receive a white man's name. Furthermore, the Savage River is the only tributary of the Potomac to keep the name given it by the original surveying party.

by Bernice Kepple

The Savage River, though named by circumstance after a mere human, is still a savage, raging river today. And to see the river as it is, and was, gives even more credit to those surveyors who struggled to map the river and open the area to civilization.

Fourth Of July Weekend Busy In Garrett County

Judging from the number of visitors to the Youghiogheny Overlook Information Center on Rt. 48 and the Deep Creek Lake Information Booth along U.S. Rt. 219, the 1987 Fourth of July weekend in Garrett County was a busy one, according to the created new interest in Mozart Deep Creek Lake-Garrett and his life and music. BAPTISM BY IMMERSION? - Actually, it's Father Martin Feild from St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, being dunked in and hit the sign. Martin was the popular dunking booth that was part of the July 4 celebration subsequently charged by State held at Broadford Lake last Saturday. It appears that even a priest's prayers go unanswered sometimes. Or do they? Perhaps, Father Feild's answer to his prayer was the watery fate — time and time again. Many local celebrities participated goodnaturedly in the dunking booth to raise money for Habitat for Humanity. With other booths and activities, funds were also raised for the House of Hope, Hospice of Garrett County, Inc. local volunteer fire departments, Southern Rescue Squad, Youth for Christ, the Aerobic Diehards and Dream Come True. Frostburg State College Receives University Status Official word was received Tuesday from the State Board of Higher Education that Frostburg State College had achieved university status. The vote by the state board was six to one. The decision was made after several members of the state board dropped a vigorous effort to delay the approval pending changes in criteria for university status FSU now holds the distinction of being the first university in Western Maryland. Frostburg opened its doors 85 years ago and was known as the Normal School. It became Frostburg State College in 1963. Dr. Herbert F. Reinhard, president of FSU, credited Senator John Bambacus and Delegate Casper Taylor for their part in the change.

Dr. Reinhard was elated with the decision and said it was "a great day for Western Maryland" and that it had "great potential for the whole area."

Sen. Bambacus, who teaches political science at FSU, stated, This just shows the tremendous cooperation by all segments of the people of Allegany and Garrett counties."

The senator said the university designation bill was "without question the single most difficult piece of legislation that the delegation, in my mind at least, has ever gotten through because every step of the way was an absolute war. It shows, more and more, that you take nothing in the legislative process for granted."

While there has been nothing said publicly about labor problems at The Data Entry Company facility in Oakland, we have picked up some disturbing rumblings from sources we consider reliable. It seems that there is a major push at the facility to bring about an employee vote for a union.

We have learned that if a vote is taken and the union is successful in taking over the labor force, the possibility is great that the company will simply close its doors, permanently, and re-locate the facility. The computer-punch operation does not involve large machinery and, therefore, moving it would be relatively easy. We understand that the company owns property in Winchester, Va., which would be most suitable for a facility of this nature.

Labor laws do not allow supervisory personnel to tell workers that a plant will shut down in the event of a successful union vote. Thus, we utilize this column today to issue such a warning to the local employees.

We have also been informed from the other side of the issue that certain management practices at the local facility have, at times, bordered on unreasonable, and that some employee gripes may be justified. However, there has been a change in personnel management in the past six months, and during that time some real improvements have been made, not only in the areas of wages and benefits, but also toward upgrading of employee morale. Programs such as the Employee of the Month awards, the July winner of which is pictured in today's issue of The Republican, are among them.

All we ask at this point is for the employees to take a wait-and-see attitude for at least another six months to give management a fair shot at making working conditions as comfortable, rewarding and reasonable as possible. For if the union gets a foothold, we are truly afraid that some 170 local jobs will no longer exist. This would be a situation that the employees of Data Entry, and the county as a whole, can ill afford.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Readers

The staff of Garrett County Mental Health, Community Rehabilitation and Addictions Service wishes to express appreciation for local support of May as National Mental Health Awareness Month. Special thanks to Heck's Department Store (Oakland) for initiating the distribution of information brochures to their May shoppers and for displaying the National Mental Health Poster. Thanks to the County Commissioners for proclaiming May 23 to May 30 "Garrett County Mental Health Week," to radio stations WMSG and WFRB and to Chuck Gill of the Tri-State Report. Also thanks go to Don Sincell, editor of The Republican, for his extra efforts in helping us to meet deadlines. We hope that national and local efforts will continue to keep people informed about mental health issues.

Sincerely, Jean James Clinical Coordinator Ruth Beitzel Coordinator of Community Education and Inservice Training

To the Editor:

Your editorial page was a delight and enlightening, July 2. Speicher and Ashby out-did themselves and the cartoon and your editorial, "Freedom." It made me think back to when we had access to the marvelous columns by the Foxes

I was delighted to read of the League of Women Voters' consensus on the Lake analysis and I am surely grateful that they are involved in this most important aspect of Garrett County's future

I applaud Brenda Butcher's "bloodletting and I hope the Liquor Board has an opportunity at the law breaking liquor establishments." The wrist tap given them in their court hearing sickened me. If anyone can't tell a 12 and 16 year old aren't 21, then the business should be closed and put out of business permanently If the breaking of the law was pursued as diligently as it was in the heart breaking front page story this week, we wouldn't have such a corrupt mess in Garrett County. It's strange how the male chavinists can so poignantly point out some issues and be so ignorant and inactive in others. Example: Ride out the Sand Flat Road and see the acres of junked cars which are and have been clearly visible endlessly for years. I could go on and on. I refer also to the fact my son has been (incarcerated) (his and my feelings) in a mental institution for endless weeks, when it isn't necessary for him to be there and he is there only because there is not one bed in any home or any place, anywhere in Garrett County for him or any other mentally ill

All these state and county paid people who can't or don't do their job for whatever reason? How come? Why? Pork Barrel? The laws that aren't changed, the commitment that the I don't give a hoot, the less than human carelessness about those who can't help themselves, the lack of concern for the helpless: the elected officials who don't care, the highly placed state and county have their vacations, their time off, the endless breaks, the marvelous benefits but what of the clients they are supposed to serve? What about the people who are supposed to be the reason all this bureaucratic mess exists! What about the service they don't get? Who would think I'd like a oliday for a few days from this 14 year debate? Who thinks the mentally ill are human beings? There is no evidence here that they are thought of as real live human beings; just don't put them near me is the attitude of fear. Where is the education of the ignorant concerning the mentally ill here?

Christianity and freedom and the Bakkers plus the media your editorial stated.

I don't need to concentrate on the atrocious Jim and Tammy debacle of farce religion; I have enough "Farce Religion" right here. I have always believed in trying to clean up in my own back vard and I have been ostracized outrageously for trying to do so here.

The media spent this long weekend on Freedom, Liberty and long vacations for some, 'For me it was to have my son home away from the mental institution where he isn't supposed to have to be, but is, because there's still no room at the Inn," in Garrett County for him; where's his freedom?

Where's mine? County commissioners, administrator, states attorney, regional director and all the elected and paid officials who won't move or act I hope you enjoyed your long holiday! I didn't! My son did, in his own home, thanks to his father.

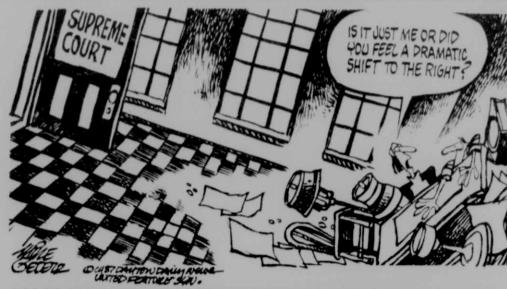

Last week there was one agency who responded and helped me. I am deeply grateful. I'll never forget that at least one area I approached for help responded with love, help and concern. It's rare in Garrett County when you are pleading for the mentally ill! A Christian community? Where) Think about it. This is my opinion.

To the Editor: We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped in every way to make the first Grantsville Days Horse Pull a great success! There were a few people, however, (you know who you are) who didn't think we could "pull it off," but we did, and it couldn't have been better!

We would like to thank the Lions Club for giving us this opportunity, and for the use of the newly purchased land.

Thanks to all the businesses that donated: Springs Equipment, American Industrial Steel Fence Co Renedict Trucking, Southern States. Grantsville Ford, Grantsville Foodland, Garrett County Horsemen's Assoc., Hardesty's True Value, Guy's Tire Shop, isn't there, the lack of caring, Stanton's Mill, Hilltop Inn

Supply, Keyser's Ridge Truck Stop, Newman Funeral Home, J&B Tire, Betty Jo's Fashions Friend's Stockyard, Grantsville Stockyard, Hershberger Insurance Agency, Buckel's Market and two anonymous senior

citizens of the Grantsville area. Thanks to all who came Sunday morning to help set up, and all who helped tear down and cleanup afterward. Thanks to those of you who went after the weights, which were donated by Bob Decker. We thank everyone who helped us sell 50/50 tickets, and everyone who bought them. Congratulations to Dottie Stark who won the 50/50 drawing of $407.00. We would like to thank Tom Upole for being our announcer. He did a real good job! A very special thank you to the horse pullers who came to give us a real good show. If it weren't for you, this wouldn't have been possible.

So many people helped us in so many ways, we tried not to forget to mention anyone. If your name was not mentioned, please don't think we didn't appreciate your help, because we truly did!

A very special thank you to Dave Warnick and Leo Miller for doing such a good job organizing it. Hopefully next year we can do it again.

Finally, thanks to all you spectators who came. Wanda Warnick and I am writing this article in regards to the treatment of parts of the county in regards to House Bill 826 drawn up by the county commissioners and Delegate Edwards. This money from which this ambulance bill is being paid to Southern and Northern Rescue squads was money from the state which was to be spent for county projects all over the county. This year will amount to nearly $80,000.00. Eighty thousand dollars to the two squads.

Elk Garden takes calls in Kitzmiller, Shallmar, and other sections in that end of the county, Tri-Towns, Westernport, takes care of our area to Swanton Road Bloomington Savage River to Big Run Park area, Barton area of Garrett County, they had 106 calls in eleven months last year in Garrett County. We have to pay a fee to belong to their squad or pay loading and mileage per trip, this figures to about $100.00 one hundred dollars to Cumberland. Lonaconing ambulance covers their area in Garrett County also Boy's Camp: Frostburg ambulance takes calls in Midland and Shaft areas in Garrett County, also

My husband and I along with other property owners in our area, are very concerned with the future of the lake.

Why we were told the sewerage system was for the good of the lake, and new development is still allowing septic systems is beyond me. How can this be good? We were very interested in keeping the lake pollution-free and protecting our investment, but it seems this sewerage system was put in only so others could develop. We are always glad to see upgrading such as we have done and new single family development, but condos and multidocks will only over-crowd the lake. Where are the boats going to go? Maybe we should be thinking of installing traffic signals! It is also unfair that new developments are being issued multi-dock permits and people whose subdivision developments were done 20 years ago and have deeded lake access are not permitted their allotted dock spaces and have to hire attorneys to get what is theirs.

Restaurant and Lounge, Fuel Something is wrong here. Do City, Grantsville Feed & only the developers with money and power get special privileges?

As we continue to invest more into our cottage, we become more and more concerned. Will we have to leave a good thing? I'm sure if you sent a questionnaire out to the other owners, you would find they have the same concerns and maybe more. Sometimes we don't take the time to sit down and write out our feelings.

People - please look at what is happening to a good thing. Soon this lake will be unusable. Sincerely.

landfills and sewage sludge disposal. He also discussed the water quality monitoring program on the Yough which checks the river near Oakland and near Friendsville.

Harman talked about his agency's programs that affect water quality and public health. They include issuance of permits for wells and septic systems and checking of bacterial levels in swimming areas such as the Swallow Falls portion of the Youghiogheny. He also provided the board with a summary of water quality in

The members of the panel generally agreed that the overall quality of the river had improved recently and that the completion of the Oakland sewage treatment plant would probably improve the water in that portion of the river. They also agreed that the area around Crellin and the water in Snowy Run are problems that will need to be corrected in the future.

The members of the board asked numerous questions of the panel about specific and general concerns on water

The board's July meeting will be held tonight (July 9) at 7:30 in room 010 of Garrett Community College. Included on the agenda is a review of the rewritten scope of work for a recreational carrying capacity study and a review of recommendations on water quality for the management plan.

The commissioners agreed to that arrangement, but informed Butscher and Lane that, in the future, they would determine legal counsel.

In a related matter, the commissioners stated that they are now reviewing final applications for the position of license commissioner and expect to hire one within the week

The commissioners also met with members of the Board of Health and the Roads Department to discuss routine county business Tuesday.

'We, as elected officials representing the people of Mtn. Lake Park, feel that inequities should be addressed wherever they occur, be it in a rural county or a more urban environment," stated Alexander. "Paying twice for the same service is certainly inequitable and it is the intent of the tax differential law to provide a legal mechanism to correct such a situation.'

The Mayor contends that the move on the part of the commissioners discriminates against Park. "It appears to be an attempt to get revenge upon the residents simply because the town requested a tax differential due to them by state law,"

Mayor Alexander concluded, 'The town of Mtn. Lake Park will not be threatened or blackmailed, and will not stand still for petty acts of revenge on the part of the county commissioners. We have directed town attorney, Robert E. Watson, to refer the letter of the commissioners to the Attorney General for his opinion as to its legality. We think this attempt to punish

Premenstrual Syndrome (PMS) -A Problem For Female Patients And Their Families by Karl E. Schwalm, M.D., FAAFP

Premenstrual Syndrome is a condition which many people reading this may well never have heard of, some probably have heard of, and a few are well aware of its meaning. Much has been written in popular magazines recently, especially women's

Premenstrual Syndrome is a nebulous condition, with strong protagonists for various treatments and some skeptics who deny that it even exists. This confusion is compounded by the association of some 150 symptoms with the syndrome and the development of more than 300 treatments. There is growing evidence to indicate that PMS is not a single entity, but a condition with several causes and many contributing factors. My own prejudice is that it is to varying degrees an exaggeration of the "normal" symptoms of the menstrual cycle, sometimes to unbearable ex-

Some of the more common symptoms of PMS are increased fluid retention with bloating, abdominal pressure, abdominal cramps, emotional lability, irritability, breast tenderness, even acts of violence. These tend to start within one week of when menstruation begins and usually taper one to two days into the menstrual period. Women often accept these symptoms as part of being a woman, and indeed, in some cases, there is a grey area between what is "normal" and what is PMS.

Most physicians would agree that when the syndrome interferes with one's life, that it is definitely PMS. For example, if it causes marital discord, abuse of children or excessive days lost from work, this would qualify as PMS. Unfortunately, there is no blood test or X-ray which will identify PMS - the diagnosis is based purely on symptoms.

The good news is that physicians and psychologists are aware of the problem. The bad news is that there is no defined cure. An axiom of medicine says that if there are multiple remedies for an affliction, probably none of them work well. Some medications, such as ibuprofin and diuretics help physical symptoms, which may make the whole syndrome more bearable. Counseling often helps to deal with the stress. Special diets, hypnosis, exercise and medications other than those already mentioned have been tried. and each seems to work for other people. Until something better comes along, the patient and her physician will need to formulate a plan together. Meanwhile, families, and especially husbands, need to be aware of the problem and need to be supportive.

Physicians Must Educate Breast Cancer Patients

A law designed to help breast cancer patients understand the various treatment options available to them went into effect July 1, according to the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Under this law, physicians who treat breast cancer are required to educate patients about alternative methods of treatment. The law is intended to help patients make an informed decision, along with their physicians about the type of treatment that will best suit breast cancer patient with a written summary describing the treatment options. Patients then sign a DHMH signature form acknowledging receipt of the summary.

The Department of Health and Mental Hygiene is required to provide a standardized written summary of treatment facilities that performs treatments of breast cancer.

DHMH has notified all practicing physicians in the state of Maryland about the law and is in the process of distributing pamphlets prepared by the Medical and chirugical Faculty of the State of Maryland to hospitals and physicians who have requested them.

Failure to educate a patient of alternative methods of treatment for breast cancer as required by the law may result in either reprimand, probation, suspension or revocation of

Secretary of Health and Cloggers from Upper Marlboro. Mental Hygiene, Adele Wilzack, R.N., M.S., said, "Breast cancer treatment has changed substantially during the past options to each hospital, clinic, several years. Various options and physician's office and other for the management of breast cancer are available today and with this new law, we are Physicians are required by hoping more women will be registered members and law to explain and provide each made aware of these options"

TOURS OF SEVERAL VICTORIAN STYLE HOUSES in Mountain Lake Park will be one of the events of the fifth annual Mountain Lake Park Days, slated for July 17-18. The doors of seven homes will be open to the public on Saturday, July 18, from 12:30 to 5 p.m. Tickets are $5 per person. The Romney Cottage, or Little Monte Vista, pictured above, is one of the houses that will be open, along with the Watson or Enlow house, below. The Romney Cottage, presently owned by the Nelson Thomasson family, was operated as a boarding house as early as 1894, as was the Watson house in the 1880s. The Watson house is currently owned by the Alex Mahood family. Other houses slated to be on the four are the Ruhl Cottage, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Hopwood Wooddell; the Allegheny House, owned by the Pollard family; The Lee Cottage, or Emporium, owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Vandiver: the Carr Cottage, owned by Christine Haines; and the Maxwell Cottage, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dabney. Other events of Mountain Lake Park Days include an antique auto show, a boarding house dinner (for reservations call 334-9348), an antique toy show, and a musical show

THE AGE OLD QUESTION!

Once you've decided to purchase a home, one important question you'll need to answer for yourself has to do with age. The age of your next home will determine other newer home, say two years old, or an older home of 40 years, you will probably find that living space is the biggest factor to be considered. Since older homes tend not to rise as rapidly in price as newer models, you may find that you are able to purchase a home with more floor space (square footage) at the same price as a home built just a few years ago.

On the other hand, if you are not handy with tools and repairs, you may prefer a one-yeardold home which is not likely to require repairs for many years. If one of your goals is to invest your money

Public Relations Seminar Set For July 25 At FSC

A seminar entitled "How to 'Sell' Your Organization," will be conducted Saturday, July 25, at Frostburg State College. It is specially designed for individuals who handle the public relations and publicity for volunteer groups, community service agencies, charities, and other nonprofit organizations. The day-long seminar will teach participants how to write articles about their organizations - articles which newspapers will publish

According to Dr. Joseph Malak, director of Special Programs and Continuing Education, "Sooner or later, any organization needs to publish articles which create a positive image for the organization and establish good will in the community. Newspaper articles can help an organization establish name recognition, make the public aware of the services the organization offers, recruit volunteers and increase membership for the group.

'Many organizations also need to solicit donations, publicize events, and increase attendance at events." Dr. Malak said. "In some cases, an organization may need to present its side of a controversial issue, educate the public about some topic, arouse public interest in a subject, or rally citizens to a cause."

Malak emphasized that the seminar is for anyone who wants their organization to succeed. He felt that representatives of certain groups would benefit most, including charitable organizations, community 'McNeill's Rangers" to open service agencies, volunteer organizations, veterans' groups, fraternal organizations, city, county, or state agencies, educational institutions. political action groups, clubs, religious organizations, and pathizers from the area, armed forces and reserve recruiters.

The instructors are Elvis Jones and Jeff Alderton. Elvis Jones has taught psychology two Union Generals, all without more than 20 years, including firing a shot. WINS WEEKEND GET-AWAY — James A. Pysell, pictured right, was declared the winner of a Weekend Get-Away to Frederick County when his name was drawn July 4 in a raffle sponsored by Hospice of Garrett County. The trip includes lodging and meals, plus a tour of the historic downtown Frederick area, all donated by Frederick businesses. In turn, the Wisp Resort, McHenry, donated a similar weekend package for a drawing to benefit the Frederick County Hospice organization, which was won by Carol Sheehan. Also pictured above is Wayne Johnson, executive director of the Hospice of Garrett County, who said the funds raised from the drawing will be used in the general account of Hospice for office supplies, educational materials, printing and postage. Pysell is the son of Eugene Pysell and Sharon King, Deer Park.

Over 70 Youth Attend Garrett Basketball Camp

Over 70 campers, girls and boys ages 10 through 17, attended Garrett Community College's recent Basketball Camp, directed by head basketball coach, Dennis Gibson.

Several guest speakers added to the staff included Randy Hess, assistant coach at Fairmont State College, along with Fairmont players Brian Tristani and Havwood Highsmith, who demonstrated proper shooting and warm-up techniques, as well as presenting a dunking exhibition. Warren Baker, former WVU standout and Assistant Coach at University High School, Morgantown, also spoke to the campers and worked in the offensive post stations for one day.

Coaches working the camp were Paul Pacella, Union High School; Merv Yoder, Northern High School; Corey Woods, University High School; Bobby Shaffer, Petersburg High School and Rodger Bowman, East Preston High School. Player/counselors included Jimmy Feagins, Sean Hazel and Brian Temple all of Garrett Community College, and GCC recruits Rob Mullens, University High School, and Tony Haskiell, East Preston High School. The week-long camp, which ended on Friday, June 26, included championships of double-elimination tournaments for all age groups, hot shot championships, one-on-one championships and free throw championships. T-shirts, trophies and awards were presented to every camper, as a large crowd of parents attended the Awards Ceremony.

King went on to explain that Because some of Maryland's tribes, bands or groups that, for

'government to government relationship' such as exists with the federal government."

So why don't the Indians of Maryland seek federal recognition? The House of Delegates was told that a federally recognized tribe is viewed as a domestic sovereign state like a foreign power in the eyes of the federal government. The Maryland Commission on Indian Affairs explain that this is not the relationship the native Indians of Maryland want to establish in the state.

State recognition would enable Indian tribes and groups to participate in some federal programs set aside for Indians such as housing programs within HUD and agricultural programs in the Farmers Home Administration program, therefore alleviating state expenditures for such programs.

If recognized, Indians would be identified as Indians in the census rather than white or black as most previous census records indicate, greatly improving statistical data. Indians of Maryland are currently eligible for Title IV. The Indian Education Act, and Jobs Training Partnership Act (JTPA) if they can provide documentation to prove they are of Indian descent

Without being recognized, they are not eligible for benefits provided by the Federal Bureau of Indian Affairs, The Indian Health Service and other federal programs. "You must realize that in the United States, most of the Indian population lives on reservations." King noted. "Eastern groups do not live on reservations and as a consequence do not receive federal recognition. There is an opportunity here for Indians within Maryland to finally achieve recognition. There are 12 states across the country which have given recognition to their indigenous tribes," she said. In Maryland, some tribes that could apply for state recognition include the Piscataways, Susquehannas or Nanticokes. Indians currently living in Maryland who are members of federally recognized tribes or

According to King, the Commission has recommended that all Indian groups should seek recognition in their state of just who is an Indian? The Indian Commission says that it is only the tribe that can determine who its members are, not the Commission, "Each tribe is expected to make that determination based on oral or Recognition, then, is not for

Kingdom Hall Congregation To Attend Convention

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York has announced that a three-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses has been scheduled for Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh, July 17-19.

William F. Butdorf, convention manager, said 40,000 persons are expected to attend the annual convention, including about 100 from Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, Oakland.

Butdorf saif 123 conventions are planned in the United States this summer with more than one and a quarter million dele-

"In addition to English," Butdorf said, "conventions are arranged for seven other languages, including Spanish, French, Greek, Italian, Japanese, Korean, and Portuguese.

"The program will focus on the major problems that affect humanity," Butdorf said, "and will offer practical suggestions on coping with these problems.

DOCUMENTATION FOR ESTATE

If part of your estate eventually will be probated, simple but enormously useful step to save money is to organize your records and documents as completely as you possibly can now, while you're alive

Interestingly enough, this is more important if your estate is small rather than large. Searching out documents by the executor is charged against the estate and represents a greater percentage of a small estate than a large one. In either case, organizing your documentation can mean a direct dollar savings.

Whether we like it or not our financial and legal at fairs depend on paper. For your survivors' sake, draw up an inventory of all the information they will need. Gather the papers together. if you have them, or make careful notations as to where the papers are to be found and what they contain

Steve Co.inelly Ombudsman

Steven A. Connelly has been named as the new legislative liaison and ombudsman for the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA), it was announced today by Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley

Connelly, formerly assistant director of member relations for the Maryland Farm Bureau. has worked closely with both the legislature and the agricultural constituency for the past two years. His multifaceted role at MDA will be to provide a sounding board for the public and to serve as state and federal legislative liaison for the department.

As agriculture's ombudsman, he will interface with agricultural associations and farmers, and other advocacy organizations, providing liaison for the agricultural community in general. Connelly will also program, providing a direct contact for the public and other entities outside state govern-

'We have created this position to better serve the people of Maryland," said Secretary Cawley, "and to provide immediate, personal response whenever possible. Connelly is extremely well-qualified to serve in this capacity, and we are fortunate to have him." A graduate of the University of Maryland with a B.S. degree in agricultural and resource economics, Connelly has worked with both dairy and swine operations. He lives in Rising Sun with his wife, Kelly, and son, Owen.

Commercial ice cream making began in Baltimore in 1851 when ice cream dealer Jacob Fussell established the first wholesale ice cream business in the U.S., prompted as an outlet for his surplus cream.

All Employers, Including Farmers, Are Subject To New Law

When the United States Congress passed and the president signed into law the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, the result was the first major revision of America's immigration laws in decades. The new law seeks to preserve jobs for those who are legally entitled to them: American citizens and aliens who are authorized to work in this

Put briefly, the law says that employers should hire only American citizens and aliens who are authorized to work in the United States. Employers will need to verify employment eligibility of anyone hired after November 6, 1986, and complete and retain a one-page form (I-9) available from the Immigration and Naturalization Service. When a farmer becomes an employer, that farmer is also required to verify an employee's eligibility and retain the form. "This is serious." said a spokesman from the Maryland Farm Bureau office. "The documentation is required even if you hire your brother-in-law for only one day," he said. Any employer hiring one person or more for even one day is subject to the new law which went into effect July 1, after a one month delay requested by California fruit and vegetable growers and granted by Con-

Returning for the fourth year, who sing gospel with a country

Organized in 1983, the Pittsburgh-based Morning Star Band has won several contests and opened for some of the biggest country music stars in Nashville, such as, Alabama, Conway Twitty, and The Oak Ridge Boys. The band has Don, and Justin Greenwald, undergone some changes over the past year. Bev and Alan Coldiron remain the leaders and main focus of this group and guitarists John Barrelli and Brett Shoenecker have been added. The band has modernized its sound with computerized keyboards and

Local Civic Club Meets, Hears Co. Commissioners

The Oakland Civic Club met Tuesday, June 30, at the Will O' the Wisp for a luncheon and program on public affairs. Garrett County Commissioners Ernest Gregg Jr. and Elwood Groves II spoke to the group about pertinent county issues.

Discussions then ensued regarding zoning, the Ruth Enlow Library, the fate of the Center Street School building, defoliation of trees and taxing income of timber.

While one normal ear may be good enough to allow a person to hear sound in a quiet environment, two ears are necessary to discriminate speech in a noisy environment. A good example of this latter situation might be when two people are talking at once, or when distracting sound sources are present. In these situations and others, the benefits of binaural hearing clearly outweigh those of monaural hearing. For this reason, it is suggested that the hearing-impaired person be fitted with two hearing aids when his or her condi tion calls for it. The more natural binaural sound allows the listener to localize sounds around him to deter mine the direction and distance of the source of a sound. The result is better discrimination leading to an

Homemade ice cream is one of the old-fashioned pleasures that has grown in popularity with the development of new small electrical appliances using ice cubes and table salt. Basic recipes come with most freezers. This leaflet brings new fruit flavors, several variations on the chocolate theme sherbet and more. You'll enjoy turning the simple ingredients into frozen treats.

PROCESSING TIPS Follow manufacturers' directions with care

- Cooked mixtures need to chill, allow several hours or overnight
- When whipped cream is called for, whip it only to the soft stage. If it is too stiff, it will taste buttery. And don't try to fold whipped cream into a warm mixture
- Prevent coarsely textured ice cream by using pureed fruit.
- Use the sweeteners and flavorings as specified. Cold numbs taste buds, so you can't judge the mix before it is frozen. Sugar and candy lower the freezing point.
- Because sherbets contain more sugar than ice cream, you'll need a higher proportion of salt
- Add fruits, nuts and other solids in small pieces to avoid clogging the dasher blades.
- Sweeten fruit before adding it to the mixture to keep it from freezing hard. Pureed fruit allows for better distribution
- When adding highly acidic fruits to sherbet, the mixture may curdle but it won't affect the final taste or appearance. Stabilizers in these recipes are eggs, flour or gelatin. They help keep ice cream smooth dur-
- ing storage Ripening ice cream in the freezer allows flavors
- to mellow and blend. Ice cream will keep in the freezer about two weeks, longer if the recipe includes eggs.

William Wyler never stopped counting his blessings, his daughter relates. We used to live next door to Charlie Chaplin," she says. "My father used to say that when he was a kid in Alsace, he and his friends would go to Chaplin movies. They'd laugh even before the picture started because they knew how wonderful Chaplin was and what was in store for them. It never ceased to amaze him that he ended up living next door.

Wyler's timing of her production turned out to be tragically perfect. She and narrator/interviewer Scott Berg finished filming her father in 1981 "on a Friday. He went to Los Angeles on Saturday and died of a heart attack on Monday." She's gratified, however, that her father saw the start of the home-video boom. "It's ironic," she says. "I started the documentary because people were beginning to forget about his films, or would only see them cut up on TV. Then video came along and now lots of his movies are in

Some actors go to the library to research characters they're going to play. Al Waxman, who portrays Lt. Samuels on CBS's "Cagney & Lacey," got himself involved in a situation involving the Toronto police, a handgun and a man wielding a knife Waxman was with a friend a member of the Toronto police force - in an unmarked police car. "We were parked by the curb when we saw this guy creating a public disturbance," the actor remembers. We told him to stop, but he didn't listen. By this time, a crowd was gathering. Then the guy came over and stuck a knife through a window. My friend pulled his gun and turned to me and said, 'I needed this?' He calmly dealt with the guy while I called for backup. Throughout the whole situation, even though he was scared, my friend didn't shout, he didn't hurt anyone. He managed to subdue a potentially explosive situation. He handled it beautifully because he'd learned how to control his fear I always remember that when I'm playing Samuels."

Al Waxman

Sarbanes Appoints New Field Rep.

Senator Paul Sarbanes has announced the appointment of Randolph E. Jews Jr. as a field representative. Jews, who has served in positions of increasing responsibility in youth and housing organizations in Baltimore, will be responsible for representing Senator Sarbanes with public officials and community groups throughout the

'Randolph Jews brings valuable experience and ability to my Maryland office team which works closely with citizens and public officials solving problems relating to the Federal Government and keeping me informed of the concerns of the citizens of Maryland," Sarbanes said

Jews, who since 1969 has served in Baltimore City as a vouth recreation worker, then in the Baltimore Housing Authority where he was promoted to Director of Congregate Housing, will be responsible for outreach activities on matters relating to the Federal Government. A native of Cambridge and a 1974 graduate of Morgan State University, Jews has long been active in community and volunteer activities, serving as an officer of the Hillen Road Improvement Association, Northwood Football league and as chairman of HELP, a child abuse counseling and prevention organization. Jews is a Vietnam veteran, married and the father of two

Rental Disputes Topic Of New Free Booklet

Maryland Attorney General J. Joseph Curran, Jr. has announced the publication of a new consumer protection booklet aimed at helping landlords and tenants avoid or resolve rental disputes.

The 16-page consumer guide. titled Landlords and Tenants: Tips on Avoiding Disputes, provides information on Maryland's rental laws. In an introductory letter printed in the booklet, Curran says that the Consumer Protection Division in his office "receives many inquiries regarding rental concerns," and this new booklet will help renters to understand their rights and obligations as well as remedies under Maryland law.

The booklet covers such topics as leases, application fees, security deposits, rent escrow accounts, and other remedies consumers may pursue in order to correct defective conditions in a rental unit.

The booklet says that a written lease gives renters the best protection, since it specifically details the rights and obligations of both the renter and the landlord. The booklet also notes that Maryland law requires landlords to disclose many tenant rights in writing, even if no complete written lease is required, and that consumers should keep copies of all written notices received from the landlord

In addition, the booklet cites a new state law, passed by the General Assembly in 1986, which requires every county in the state to adopt a housing code that meets minimum state standards by January 1, 1989. Although Baltimore City and some counties already have comprehensive housing codes, the new law now requires at least some housing regulations in every state subdivision, the booklet notes. Consumers also are protected from reprisals by landlords if complaints about conditions in a rental unit are filed, the booklet adds

The booklet also advises consumers that if a landlord promises to make repairs and fails state's Consumer Protection Act about which the tenants can complain to the Consumer Protection Division in Curran's

Copies of the new landlordtenant booklet have been mailed to local libraries throughout the state and also may be obtained by writing or calling the offices of the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division in Baltimore, Hagerstown and Salisbury. The address and telephone number of the Consumer Protection Division offices in Hagerstown is 138 E. Antietam St., Hagerstown, MD 21740;

The Attorney General's new booklet also lists the addresses and telephone numbers of other agencies and services that can assist consumers with rental problems, including the countyaffiliated consumer protection offices in Anne Arundel, in Somerset, PA children. GARRETT COUNTY HEALTH DEPARTMENT GARRETT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL ain Good Weight A rold Smoking Manage Your Stress Exercise Regularly Eat Balanced Meals Wear Safety Belts Don't Drink and Drive WOMEN'S HEALTH MONTH Wellness Together is offering a Special Women's

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE YIELD THE RIGHT OF WAY!

July 12, 1987 Background Scripture: Romans 5:12

Devotional Reading: Romans 6:20-23. If you drive a car, there have been countless times when you've seen those signs that command you to "YIELD." What it means, of course, is that two rights of way are converging and, if a collision is to be avoided, one of those rights of way must yield or give way to the passage of the other. It doesn't mean that you must necessarily stop, but that you give precedence to someone else. We may not like doing this, but we've all learned a long time ago that it is the only way to avoid a collision. There are times when, for our own safety, we must give way.

So it is in the larger view of life, too. There are times when our lives are on a collision course and we must yield to a higher power and good than ourselves. My desire for power and success, must yield to God's will for righteousness. My longing for security may have of God" in contrast to being to be yielded to God's call to take up a cross. My compulsion to hide lish Bible, I think, is closer to Paul's my sins from scrutiny may need meaning when it speaks of being to give way to God's call to rerepentance. Thus, Paul warns us, "Do not yield your members to sin as instruments of wickedness, but yield yourselves to God..." (Romans 6:13).

What does it mean to "yield"? When we're driving our car, it means that we give the right of way to someone else. In the J.B. Phillips translation, we are admonished not to "hand over your bodily parts to be, as it were, weap-ons of evil for the devil's purpose." The New English Bible uses a similar terminology, "put yourselves at the disposal of God." The Jerusalem Bible renders this as: "you should, instead, offer yourselves

Each of these translations of this passage use different language, but the meaning is the same: serve God and him alone. It is acknowledged that we are constantly confronted with the choice of serving God or serving evil. In Romans Paul makes it clear that none of us are compelled to serve either God or the devil. The responsibility is ours; we can choose to be subiect to the will of God or the forces of evil. We will serve one or the other and the choice is ours.

To be sure, few of us knowing ly make a commitment to let evil dominate us. Even people whose lives are clearly in the grip of evil often do not realize the extent to which they are slaves to sin. We all make choices, however, and those choices, small and inconsequential as they may seem, may lead us deeper and deeper into the grip of evil. Thinking that we are in control of our own lives, we fail to realize that our daily choices have put us squarely into the power of evil SERVANTS OF GOD

So it is not a question of whether we will be servants or not. The only question is whom we will serve. In the RSV, Paul calls us "slaves "slaves of sin." But the New Eng-"bound to the service of God." It is not that our freedom to choose has been taken away from us, but that we have given it over into God's hands. It is the difference between being bound and binding ourselves-the difference between the slave who is compelled and the servant who yields to the will of

Alpha Alpha Inducts Two Into Society

The Alpha Alpha Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma held its initiation for new members in May at the Bittinger Fire Hall. Inducted into the society were Rose Lee Folk and Sheila Russell.

Membership into the chapter is by invitation only after recommendations by three members and voting by the chapter

Mrs. Folk is a graduate of Frostburg State College. Upon graduation, she taught at Route 40 Elementary School. She then took time off to rear a family. She is the mother of three sons.

She reentered education by working as an aide at Grantsville Elementary School and then obtained teaching positions at Northern High and Northern Middle schools. She is presently teaching at Yoder Elementary School. She is married to Orlo Dean Folk and

Musical Pageant To Be Presented In Cumberland

The city of Cumberland, in cooperation with the Cumberland Bicentennial Committee, will present the musical-dramatic pageant "Gateway to the Promised Land" every Thursday, Friday and Saturday from July 9 to August 1 at the Allegany Community College theatre. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The play was authored by area resident Betty Atkinson Favre and covers the entire history of the city of Cumberland, from its founding as a trading center for the Potomac Company in 1755, to the challenges currently facing the city. In dramatic scenes and montages of song and dance, the play recounts Braddock's Defeat, the abduction of Jane Frazier, the Whiskey Rebellion, the schizophrenic agony of the Civil War, fire, floods and the Industrial Revolution

Favre, who is also at work as director of the play, says her work is "a celebration of the city's origins and development. The dramatic thrust of the work s to examine Cumberland as a portrait of the Constitution's principles of freedom and opportunity historically realized.

Favre's work has included the Festival of American Folklife for the Smithsonian Institution and two International Children's Festivals for Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts. Over a dozen original songs were written for "Gateway" by George McDowell Jr., Grantsville. It is his third musical play. McDowell is a former tubist with the WVU Summer Symphony and a former pianist with the Ambassador's Quartet. The play is being performed and produced by volunteers, who will portray many persons from Cumberland and U.S. history, including George Washington, Jane and John Frazier, Daniel Boone, Gen. Edward Braddock, and Abraham Lincoln.

No advance tickets are being sold for the play. Instead, tickets will be sold on a firstcome, first-serve basis at the door. For more information persons may call City Hall at

Mine Drainage Study Agreement Is Announced

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced the signing of a cooperative agreement to develop a plan for the comprehensive investigation of abandoned mine drainage in the North Branch Potomac River Basin. The goal of the agreement, signed by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, the West Virginia Department of Energy, and the Department of the Interior, Office of Surface Mining, is to develop a plan for abatement of those abandoned mine drainage problems that have the potential to reduce acid mine drainage impacts on the North Branch Potomac River, its tributaries, and Jennings Randolph Lake, upstream of Bloomington Dam.

Maryland's Department of Natural Resources, West Virginia's Department of Energy and Interior's Office of Surface Mining (OSM) will work together in developing the plan. The study is funded by OSM's Abandoned Mine Land Program under the Surface Mining abandoned mine drainage Control and Reclamation Act of

Visiting Poets To Lead Writers' Workshop At FSC

The western Maryland area will become a focus of contemporary American poetry in July when five widely known poets visit the campus of Frostburg State College. Michael Glaser, Douglas DeMars, Daniel Mark Epstein, Susan Wood and Barbara Goldberg will be featured during the week of July 12-17 when the Western Maryland Writers' Workshop holds its second annual poetry workship.

The public is encouraged to join in this week-long celebration of poetry. All evening sessions are free and will be held in Frostburg State College Library Room 210 at 8 p.m. Receptions will follow each

Michael Glaser and Douglas DeMars will be featured on Monday, July 13.

Glaser is professor of literature at St. Mary's Collge of Maryland where he teaches creative writing and is director of the Annual Festival of Poets and Poetry. A Poet-in-the-Schools for the Maryland Arts Council. Glaser has published over 100 of his poems in journals, magazines and anthologies around the country. He has read his work widely in the greater Washington, D.C. area and was recently invited to read his work to the Oxford University Poetry Society in Oxford, England.

Douglas DeMars is the winner of a Maryland State Arts Council Fiction Award and Work-in-Progress Grant. The author of a recently published collection of poetry Masked Avenger, he specializes in the teaching of poetry and fiction writing at Frostburg State

Epstein, who has been praised as "one of America's brightest young poets," has published four volumes of poetry. In his presentation Tuesday, July 14, he will read from his works about love, despair and depravity, death, about modern tensions and the natural world, and the lessons history teaches.

Featured on Wednesday, July 15, will be Susan Wood, a former assistant editor with The Washington Post and currently teacher of creative writing at Rice University. As described by Robert Penn Warren, "Susan Wood knows her difficult craft. But that is, in itself, nothing. She also has the magic of making it disappear into poetry, splendid in its scale and intention

$6,000 Theft Investigated By Md. State Police

The Maryland State Police this week investigated several thefts, one involving a $6000 loss for a Grantsville resident.

Howard E. Fisher, 82, reported that he paid, by check, an unidentified man a sum of money to pave his driveway in late June. Fisher stated that the man returned in 17 days asking for more money and Fisher obliged.

According to investigating officer, Tfc. R.C. Resh, the man was paid $6000 more than was originally stated. He added that no contract was signed between the two men. Police are conducting a search for the man and two accomplices, and caution other local residents to beware of these individuals who were described as Mexicans. Sgt. Dan Moore of the Maryland State Police added that residents should make certain that any contractors who travel door to door to solicit work, should have a Garrett County and Maryland contractor's license.

One of the major highlights of the first Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will be a four-day music festival, featuring not only some outstanding local talent, but also world-renown performers, in particular violinist Erick Friedman, who has carved for himself a career of international dimensions, having appeared as guest soloist with most of the world's great orchestras.

Through the efforts of Friedman and Kathryn Sincell, a native of Mtn. Lake Park, the first Garrett Lakes Music Festival of Maryland has been rett Community College. The event will feature not only Friedman as music director James Stern, violinist, and whose careers and fame are rising at a rapid pace.

soloist will be 15-year-old Mariko Inaba, a native of Japan who began playing the violin at age 5. After moving to the United States in 1979, she became a student of Mrs. Katherin Wells for two years, then studied with Eliot Chapo, then concert master of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, and is now a student of Erick Friedman. In 1983 she won First

Education Board Discusses Various Topics At Meeting

The Garrett County Board of Education met last Thursday where everything from doughnuts to a local teacher's grievance was discussed. Information was also presented concerning computer education in Garrett County Elementary Schools and the accreditation of Friendsville and Red House Elementary Schools by the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs.

As reported in last week's issue of The Republican, the two schools received the national honor for their Extended Elementary Education Programs for four-year-olds after a seven-month self study and evaluation.

Two of the first schools in the nation to be awarded the honor, each center serves 20 four-yearolds, and is under the leadership of Sandra Nesline.

It was also reported at the meeting that a decision by the Garrett County Board of Education concerning a local teacher was upheld by the Maryland State Board of Education

According to Al Ringer, acting superintendent of Garrett County Schools, Mary Lynne Fitzpatrick, a former teacher at Long Stretch Children's Home, contested a decision by the board that she was not an employee of the board. Ringer explained that Ms. Fitzpatrick was hired by the Long Stretch school for neglected and delinquent children - a school which automatically receives Chapter One benefits. Monies for that program, said Ringer, are "channeled" through the board for use by the recipient school. Therefore, he noted. Fitzpatrick was not considered an employee of the school, and could not reap the fringe benefits of a board employee.

Information was presented at the meeting, by Richard Buckingham, director of Food Services, concerning a break-

Area Man Receives Few Accidents 18-Month Sentence Investigated By For Theft Charge

During Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings last Thursday, a LaVale man was sentenced to 18 months in the Maryland Department of Corrections after he was found guilty of theft.

John W. Wiley, 24, was also fined $500 and court costs as a result of the conviction after the criminal appeal case was entered into Circuit Court April 8 from Garrett County District Court. Circuit Court Judge, Fred A. Thayer, upheld the decision by Judge Jack Turney in District Court where Wiley received the same verdict and sentencing

The charge, filed by Tfc. G.R. Chaney of the Maryland State Police, was the result of an incident January 7 at Casselman Motors, Grantsville, where Wiley reportedly stole 15 to 20 gallons of gasoline from a 1980 International school bus parked there. Bill Lee Smith represented Wiley

Attention Investors:

Fishing for a higher-yielding investment?

Don't forget the added risks!

There's an old saying that you've heard many times: "The greater the reward, the greater the risk." This is certainly true in the financial world — the higher the rate, the greater the risk

Also, there's more than one type of risk involved in many financial investments. Many "non-bank" investments have as many as four different types of risks you should be aware of before investing your hard-earned dollars.

MARKET RISK - The risk of price fluctuations in the securities market for both stocks and bonds. PURCHASING POWER RISK - This risk, associated with inflation, is that your invested dollar may not buy as much in the future as it could today.

INTEREST RATE RISK — This risk generally causes the value of certain investments to move in the opposite direction of interest rates — as rates rise, the value decreases.

FINANCIAL RISK — This risk goes to the credit quality of an investment, and indicates that a higher rate should be paid where safety and security are sacrificed.

If you have been lured by the promise of a "whopping interest rate" for a non-bank investment, we suggest you carefully assess the "boat-load" of risks that go along with it. Only then will you realize where your hardearned dollars should be invested — at First United National Bank & Trust.

We Can Take It . . .

The editorial in this column last week certainly sparked a response from a number of persons involved with the Data Entry Company in Oakland. We received several telephone calls, some personal visits, and quite a few letters to the editor, which appear on this page today.

Everyone who contacted our office was angry with us, some more so than others. Former and present employees, and friends of former and present employees, told us that we did not present the facts about working conditions at the local facility. Those who support union labor were angry because we suggested that employees "wait and see" before voting for the union. Even the owner of the company called and seemed somewhat miffed that we wrote anything at all about the problem. He said he agreed with "the flavor" of the editorial, but did not care for our approach.

While the editor does not particularly enjoy being raked across the coals any more than the next person, it is recognized that it comes with the territory. Anytime one expresses an opinion publicly, particularly about a sensitive issue, he can expect to be bombarded by opposing opinions. It should be remembered that an editorial is precisely that: an opinion, not a declaration of facts.

A good editorial should serve as a catalyst for action and response by those involved, which is exactly what this one was. It should make people think, become emotional, and then act. It is interesting to note that there were no letters about this issue, no phone calls, and no visits before the editorial appeared.

While the mass media of this nation can be legitimately criticized for many things, perhaps its greatest contribution to society is in alerting the public to problems and crises that exist; because so often, until there is public awareness, little or no action is taken to solve the problems.

We will be glad to take the abuse if, in the end, our stated opinions help initiate positive change in our community.

To the Editor:

This letter is in comment to the editoral of "Wait and See" concerning T.D.E.C. and the union. It is of obvious appearance that you type your editorial before you get all the

The change in management you mentioned was done with the addition of a personnel director. He was not brought in for good relations, but as a separation between management and the laborers.

The changes toward so-called improvements were not brought about until union brochures appeared. Your idea of wait-and-see is not a new one. We were told, after the union's appearance, to wait two or three months and we would see definite improvements. Two or three months have passed and our basic improvement was an incentive program that is for the company and not the employees. By this incentive program, if we miss work for health or our keystrokes are not the same this month as last month, our wages can be dropped. This is some big improvement!

It was very apparent your informant was of managemental level. Maybe you should have asked the opinion of women who have put in several years and aren't making fifty cents more than new employees who have been there three months. You could have questioned women who are sole supporters of their families as to how easy it is to stretch their living raise at all. For a paper who is for the lake and the economical improvements it will bring, you certainly aren't for local people getting a decent pay for the type and amount of work they do. The next time you write an article, consider collecting all the facts. I suggest you check with the labor board concerning your suggestions to the endresult of a union vote tried to understand both sides management at TDEC. and all people involved - those who stick together and help, and those who don't want to get involved. I do understand and I sympathize with both sides because the stakes are so high.

But I believe we were all put on this earth for a purpose and if by trying to achieve my purpose I lost a job with no future, and gained a better future for my fellow employees, then I am personally fulfilled.

To the Editor: In regard to your editorial on The Data Entry Company, I would like to voice some views of an employee, since your article seemed to be all one-sided. The biggest reason that we would like to have a union is the low wages. Compared to other data entry operators we are very poorly paid for our skills. According to poverty guidelines we don't even reach poverty level. We get a raise once a year in December amounting to between five cents and 20 cents. with most people receiving 10 cents. We do not get a cost of

Another issue is the fact that we're not supposed to talk to each other during working hours. Our breaks and lunchtime is spent in the same room with supervisors so we are not able to talk freely. We are treated like kindergarten children instead of adults

Moving ahead at TDEC is based on other things besides a person's skills, abilities or seniority. This practice has been happening for as long as I've been employed at TDEC

(formerly IBMI). We have no retirement plan even though we've asked for one for several years. At the end of 30 or 40 years of service you might get a handshake and a thank-you, but it's very doubt-

The nightshift full-time employees had five cents of their differential taken away from them, after they had to beg for several years in order to receive a differential. When management was asked about this at a later time, management's reply was that this money was not part of the employee's wages. Nightshift employees were also forced to work an extra half hour in order to get 15 minutes added to their lunchtime, which the employees didn't want. These by management without any quested a meeting with they not hire any more management to discuss these management. They were inreprimanded if it happened these employees, but grudges will be no employees left. were dealt out.

Management did take two months to figure out an incentive plan that would lower wages instead of increasing them unless you're perfect in all areas and this includes attitude. If you disagree with anything management says or does, you are considered to have a bad attitude.

This letter only lists a very small portion of employee complaints. Management has been stubborn and unreasonable about giving us high wages and better benefits all these years and I don't think waiting six months longer is going to improve anything. We need a union in order to obtain higher wages, better benefits, better working conditions and to improve unfair company policies and decisions for all the employees. In my opinion, the best thing that could happen at TDEC is for the employees to

> The change in areas of wages and benefits has only come about because the threat of bringing in a union forced them to dish out a few tid-bits to try to calm the troubled waters.

At a meeting with top-notch brass, questions were brought up about upcoming raises. Employees were guaranteed that there would be a change from the past 20 years of only nickels and dimes. The majority of employees hit between 10 and 20 cents. As for the Employee of the Month, I am still in awe as to what exactly they have received this honor for. Is it merely for being employed there or for having a family? As for the mention of upgrading employee morale, that is the biggest joke of all. During the new change in personnel management, the employees have been constantly searching for other employment. There have been at least two dozen quitting because of the constant reference to employees needing an attitude adjustment. (A college degree expression)'s

To the Editor:

How reliable are any sources that only report one side of the story? I was always taught there are two sides.

There is a major push at TDEC to bring about an employee vote for the union. There are more reasons why employees at TDEC need a union than there is room to print in this newspaper.

To the Editor; This letter is also dealing with the "Wait and See' editorial in last week's paper. It contained some truths: there are problems at The Data Entry Co. (TDEC), but it did not tell all of them. Some are listed.

First - If you compare the wages from some data entry companies around Oakland and TDEC, you'd be furious too. A data entry person at C&P Telephone, doing the very same work as TDEC employees, is guaranteed to reach the top pay rate of $10.27/hour in four years. At TDEC, the highest rate of pay is $5.55. Bausch & Lomb's starting pay is $4.75/hour, while TDEC's starting pay is $3.50/hour. But what is the top pay for TDEC? When

One other company, in will we be guaranteed to reach it? The answer: Wait and See. Second - Ever since the employees have wanted a union, THEN there have been some changes. Employees have received a vision care plan, employee-of-the-month awards some promotions, and LITTLE pay raises. TDEC can't be losing money because the plant is expanding, has a plant in Jamaica, and is hiring more employees. The management stated several times that we are really doing a great job. But why does the company still want to close their doors? The answer: Wait and See. We're scared, yes, but the National Labor Relations Board is on the side of the TDEC employees!! We wouldn't complain if the working conditions were reasonable, but they aren't. If the TDEC company wants a wait-and-see attitude, employees may wait for years. We want a "now attitude

To the Editor: On July 2 a very sick man, Lester Simmons, was brought to Garrett County Memorial Hospital Emergency room by sources failed to tell you the ambulance. He was admitted with pneumonia. On July 6 Lester was discharged back to East View Care Home in Terra Alta but his clothing and watch did not accompany him. They had not been given to the ambulance crew Stopping by the emergency room to pick up his belongings, I was sent to the third floor. His clothing was there, we searched the pockets, the watch could not be found. The first floor admitting office was called, it had not been placed in the safe.

This was a $24.95 watch that after several years of service to had been given to Lester last fall by the employees at Ea View so it has sentimental value

> Lester did not take his watch off because he is paralyzed on his left side.

Who is responsible for a patient's personal belongings when a family member or some one cannot accompany them to the hospital?

Bonnie Mahaffey, Mgr. East View Care Home

Dear Ms. Mahaffey, We took the liberty of asking Garrett County Memorial Hospital administration your question and, upon investigation into this particular case by the associate administrator, it was discovered that the patient arrived at the hospital without a watch on his arm, according to hospital records. It was explained that a strict, specific procedure is followed to collect and safeguard personal possessions of patients, all of which are logged on a check list and then placed in a safe, with a nurse as a witness. The nurse in this case reported that she was not aware of any watch on the arm of Mr. Simmons when he arrived at the emergency room.

To the Editor: The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival presentation of Harvey at Garrett Community College is a gem - highly polished and brilliant.

Congratulations to director Jane Avery, Rob Smith, and all the other excellent players. Ben Sincell's sets were stunning. Barbara and I found the performance very entertaining, and also enjoyed the fine display of pottery and paintings in the lobby.

See How They Run To The Big Blue Barn On Beckman's Peninsula

by Sherry Frantz

A few bright stars shine brilliantly in a secluded area of Deep Creek Lake known as Beckman's Peninsula, and the aura emitted glows about the entire area as it attracts Garrett Countians, once again, to a summer of first class entertainment at the Blue Barn

Under the new management and direction of Michael Hartman, the Blue Barn's first offering, "See How They Run," was clear and undeniable evidence that the Blue Barn is living up to the fine standards set by Gene Yell, long-time owner/operator/director.

Hartman's directorial abilities, witnessed in the first production, shown through the actors and set and were magically observed by the audience - some of which might have come to the performance with a little skepticism over this unfamiliar assemblage of people. But these folks are well on their way to proving their worthiness of Garrett Countian respect and admiration.

a musical comedy, opened last night and will run through Saturday, with performances at 8 p.m. "Sneak previews" indicate an equally high quality of production standards, with skilled, determined and serious actors and crew comprising the

The second offering for the season, "Once Upon A Mattress,"

Loosely based on the fairy tale, "The Princess and the Pea," the show combines humor, music and subplots to create a modern classic, suitable for both children and adults.

Ann Grunberg, a Washington, D.C. native and recent graduate of the University of Maryland, lends her talent to the lead role, while the prince is played by Rich Byrne, a New York City resident who has acted professionally for two years.

Next week's performance is "The Importance of Being Earnest," a turn-of-the-century comedy of manners written by

Tickets for tonight's performance and all others are available at Proudfoot's Pharmacy in Oakland and Four All Seasons at the Midlake Mall. Tickets are also available at the door after 6 p.m., and any information about tickets can be obtained by calling

Mr. Dave Berg United Food & Commercial Workers Local 27 202 - 204 Paca Street Cumberland, MD 21502

Dear Mr. Berg:

I must respond to your letter regarding an open forum. First, you must realize that my attorney will go to any debate that I attend. I am a nursing home administrator, not a Union Negotiator. I am not sure what I can or cannot say in a debate, so I would have to have my lawyer present. Besides, he will be here no matter how the election turns out. So, get used to him.

We would like to debate with you. There are several questions we think you should answer.

1. Why did you sign a contract at Cumberland Convalescent Center that only paid MINIMUM WAGE?

2. Why did the federal government charge your Union with illegal acts of violence, threats and vandalism at Cumberland?

3. Why did the employees at Cumberland ask to decertify 3 Days after you signed a contract?

4. Why did you sign a contract at Frostburg Village that only pays:

Nursing Aides $4.00 - $4.30

Dietary Aides $3.70 - $4.00

Housekeepers $3.70 - $4.00

5. Why did you sign a contract at Parkview Convalescent Center that has a wage scale for employees that pays less than $4.00 Per Hour? (Start $3.60 -- after 3 years $4.15)

6. Why did you sign a contract at Episcopal Church Home that starts employees at Less than $4.00 per Hour?

7. Are you going to do the same thing for us -- low wages, violence and strikes?

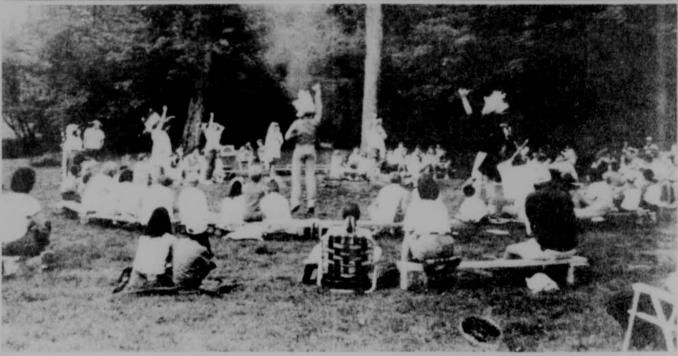

8. How are you planning to spend the ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS in $\underline{\text{dues}}$ you hope to collect the next three years?

Please answer these questions so the employees hear the real truth! Please agree to the debate quickly so the true story can be told before the vote. I hope you will be honest enough to have this meeting.

This request for a debate has not been accepted. Would you trust someone who is afraid to "discuss the facts" in front of the company representatives?

According to a member of the coaching staff, the Oakland team plans to file a protest concerning Saturday's scheduled game with Frostburg being played on the Frostburg State University field. The field is in poor condition, the local official said, noting that there is "a hole" at first base and the pitcher's mound is not properly constructed. Attempts will be made to have the game played at another field, possibly at Garrett Community College.

Halfway, the team defeated by Oakland last night, lost to Frostburg earlier in the week by only two runs, 11-9.

Annual Western Maryland Tennis Tourney Slated

The 66th playing of the Western Maryland Championships, the mid-Atlantic's oldest tennis tournament, has been scheduled for the Mt. Lake Park Tennis Club for August 5-9. There will be competition in men's singles and doubles, women's singles and doubles, mixed doubles, senior singles (35, 45, 55 and 65) and senior 45 and 60 doubles, it was announced by Earle Palmer Brown, tournament director. A new event this year will be women's doubles (35). The tournament was first played in 1915 and has been held annually since then, with time out for two world wars. A highlight of a full schedule of social events is the 31st annual corn roast to be held on Friday of tournament week between two 1980 vintage "cottages" in the Play begins in men's singles Wednesday morning with other events starting on Thursday. Finals will be played on Sunday, August 9. Entries should be sent to Katharine L. Smith, P.O. Box 154, Mt. Lake Park, MD 21550. Housing and camping information is available from the Garrett County Promotion Council, Oakland, MD 21550 or by calling (301)

Admission to the tournament is free and a food stand will be operated by Garrett County tennis players. More than 100 persons are expected to participate this year and bring substantal income to Garrett County merchants and lodging facilties, according to Club President David DeGrafft.

Playoff Hopes Dashed For Local Legion Squad

Playoff hopes for the Garrett County American Legion baseball team, the defending Mountain District champions, were all but dashed this past Saturday when the local hurlers dropped a doubleheader to league leader, Fort Cumberland Post 13, 7-1 and 14-2, Saturday afternoon at Donahue Field, Cumberland. The losses dropped Coach Phil Caruso's team's record to 2-6, while Fort Cumberland improv-

Troy Todd limited the Garrett players to just four hits in the opener, walking only two and striking out 10 in going the distance. The Cumberland squad was on top 6-0 after the first three innings of play.

John McKenney rapped a two-run double, while John Snyder, Donnie Raines and Troy McKenzie each hit two singles in Cumberland's ninehit effort.

Garrett County's only run were Ashby, Lohr, Messenger. was on a solo home run by Jason Corbin in the fifth inning.

bined for another four-hitter in the second game, while the Cumberland bats continued to pound out the hits. The winners finished with 14 hits, while Deter and Strain fanned nine Garrett batters.

Brian Gross led the winners with a double and a single, good for four RBIs, while Danny Anderson doubled and singled for two runs and Raines, Dave Starr, Seth Whitacre and Trov Wagoner each hit a pair of Garrett's four-hit effort was highlighted by J.R. Bosley's solo homer in the fourth, plus a single

"I know we have the talent on our team," Caruso said, "but we don't seem to have the chemistry and the aggressiveness that you have to have to be really competitive in Legion ball in this area.'

WINDOW SHOPPING!

Do you remember the last major appliance you purchased? Did you walk into the store, point your finger and say "I'll take that one"? Better yet, think back to the last time you purchased a new ar. Did you drive to the nearest dealer showroom, walk in, and purchase the first shiny auto that caught your eye?

You probably spent some time "window shopping" first, didn't you? You may have driven to numerous dealerships on a Sunday afternoon to just browse among the many new cars for sale there. Then perhaps you spoke with salespeople at several places to determine prices. Finally, after satisfying yourself that you have found the right model, at the best possible price, you made your decision to

Home buyers shop in much the same way, buying the home which meets their needs only after comparing the Service"

price with other similar homes

When selling your home it is important to remember that buyers will "shop" your price by making comparisons with other homes currently for sale. As a result, homes which have been priced too high will not attract sufficient attention to warrant purchase offers. On the other hand, when a suitable home is located which is priced at or below the level of other comparable properties, the likelihood of a sale is greatly increased. A knowledgable buyer will recognize a home which is fairly priced.

However, a vedren, Carol Slagle and Neale hicle with a G.V.W. over 13 tons, Wolfe, and they have four but no more than 18 tons, must come to a complete stop before crossing the bridge.'

Bridge Closing The Swallow Falls Bridge is scheduled to be closed for repairs and upgrading of tonnage carrying capacity on Monday, July 20; Tuesday, July 21; and Wednesday, July 22. When completed, the maximum weight limit will increase to 23 tons.

Vision Quest

Continued from Page A-3 and mules, the day begins at 3:30 a.m. Wake-up is between 4 and 4:30 a.m. for the rest of camp. Barring any problems, the wagon train is ready to move out between 6:30 and 7 each morning. "We like to take advantage of the early morning light and coolness," explained Davis. The train is off the road for the day and has made camp by lunch time. Part of the reason for this is that all of the youth must attend school classes four hours each day. Classes are held at tables under a canopy and in a school bus. The county in the state where a youth resides can choose to they will be hasseled by use Vision Quest in place of a picketers, as we have seen in lockup for the youth. "Judges basically have three choices,' said Davis. "They can turn the

CONFIDING YOUR WISHES

Unless you take certain common sense measures now, the arrangements for your funeral and burial may turn into a source of conflict and misery among your loved ones. It is not enough to confide your wishes to your spouse or perhaps a close friend. Other relatives may take exception to certain arrangements and try to override such wishes and even take over responsibility together - particu larly if you have entrusted this to a friend. Your best course is to tell all involved parties what you have decided so there is no

THE FRONT PORCH was, at one time, a popular meeting place in many small towns, and especially in Mountain Lake Park during the early days of this century when the town was one of the major summer resort areas in the East. The cool, clean air, the beauty of the area, and the popular Chautaugua programs which offered cultural and educational entertainment throughout the summer months, attracted literally thousands of persons to the Park in the late 1800s and early 1900s. Those days will attempt to be recaptured once again this weekend during the fifth annual Mountain Lake Park Days, which features a boarding house dinner, antique toy show, antique auto show, a luncheon at Bethel United Methodist Church, a mountain music program Saturday night at Southern High School, an historical program Friday evening at Southern, and tours of several restored Victorian homes, among other events. The photo above was taken at the Maxwell Cottage, one of the homes on the tour Saturday afternoon. The house is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dabney and family. Also available for sale throughout the celebration and afterward is a newly-published book, "Once Upon a Mountaintop" by Mary I. Love, which reveals the history of the Park through creative writing and numerous photos. Specific information may be obtained by calling the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council or stopping by the Amphitheatre Ticket House along G Street in Mtn. Lake Park, just south of Rt. 135, Saturday morning. Mountain Lake Park Days is sponsored by the Friends of Mountain Lake Park.

They Share Their Traditions To Show Others Indian Ways

by Bernice Kepple

Excellent weather brought large crowds of Native Americans and spectators to the Garrett County Fairgrounds last weekend for the fifth annual American Indian Pow Wow sponsored by the American Indian Inter-Tribal Cultural Organization, Inc.

Approximately 29 tribes were represented at the Pow Wow, bringing together a variety of traditional Indian costumes and styles of dance.

Several special events occurred at this year's Pow Wow, according to Publicity Director Kathy Frick. One special happening was the arrival of a chartered bus from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., bringing a load of interested spectators on Saturday. The bus driver was the lucky winner of the silver belt buckle raffle, making his day complete.

Another special event involved a local county resident, Bob Combs of Friendsville. Combs and his wife, Maxine, have been supportors of the Pow Wow for several years, and to show their gratitude, AIITCO presented the couple (and many other local supportors) with gifts. This too, is part of the Indian's rich tradition. Traditionally, prestige, position, respect and personal wealth did not determine the most honored members of the tribe, but how

- These photos, all by Craig Phillips, capture the serious, reverent side of the American Indians who took part in the AIITCO Pow Wow last weekend at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. Those who attended, though, discovered another side to these Native Americans; their happy, friendly personalities. Pictured directly above is the grand entry ceremony which begins every pow wow. From left to right is: Onondaga Mitchell Bush, holding the eagle staff; Max Little, Seminole veteran; Mahican Jim Armagost, holding the American flag; and Billy Cypress, Seminole veteran. Microwave Menu Magic...

There's nothing worse than having to stand in a hot kitchen cooking dinner on a steamy summer night. But firing up the backyard grill takes time, and most of us — especially working couples — don't have lots The microwave oven provides a quick cool alternative. The family can enjoy an early dinner and still have plenty of time for outdoor evening activities.

The Microwave Conversion Factor

It's easy to convert steaming, braising, and boiling recipes to work in your microwave, according to Good Food Magazine. "There's usually not much difference in procedure" from a traditional recipe to one converted for microwave use, according to the magazine. "Exact timing depends primarily on quantities; in fact, large amounts may cook no faster than in a regular oven. If you stir food often, there's little risk of overcooking, since you can check doneness by appearance." There are a few no-no's, however: Good Food says "Don't sprinkle salt directly on food, and avoid dry seasoning mixes, which may not dissolve completely. And because microwaving highlights the flavors of fresh herbs and fish, use only highquality ingredients.

MICROWAVE SHISH KABOBS

Marinade:

2/3 cup white wine

1/3 cup vegetable oil

1 small onion, sliced 1 clove garlic, peeled and cut in half

1/4 teaspoon dried bouquet garni seasoning

1/4 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon black pepper

2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

Kabobs: 11/2 lbs. beef boneless sirloin cut into 16 pieces

1 large green pepper, cut into 16 pieces

4 wooden skewers. 12-in. long 8 cherry tomatoes

4 large mushroom caps

In medium bowl or 2-qt. casserole combine marinade ingredients. Add meat. Toss to coat with marinade. Cover. Refrigerate at least 4 hours.

Place green pepper in 1-qt. casserole or small bowl. Cover. Microwave at High 1 to 2 minutes, stirring after half the time. Set aside.

Assemble kabobs on skewers, alternating meat with vegetables. Place kabobs on microwave roasting rack or baking tray. Cover with wax paper. Reduce power to 50% (medium). Microwave 9 to 12 minutes, or until desired doneness, rotating roasting rack and rearranging kabobs after half the time. Serve kabobs on bed of rice, if desired.

½ lb. chopped onions 1/4 cup chopped green peppers

1 can drained kidney beans (1 lb.)

1 lb. ground beef 1 can tomato sauce (1 lb.)

1 can whole or stewed tomatoes (1 lb.)

11/2 tsp. salt

1/2 tsp. pepper

11/2 to 21/2 tsp. chili powder ½ tsp. dry mustard

In a plastic colander, over a 2 pint casserole, combine onions, green peppers and crumbled ground beef. Microwave (high) for 6 minutes, stirring every 3 minutes. Pour drippings off. Transfer to a glass bowl. Add tomato sauce, tomatoes, beans, salt, chili powder, pepper and mustard. Microwave (high) covered 12-14 minutes, stirring half-way through cooking. Let stand 5 minutes.

Makes 4-6 servings.

MICROWAVE OVENS AND CHILDREN MAKE A GREAT PAIR

"Another potential hazard is super-

"Microwave ovens and kids go together naturally," according to Good Food Magazine. "Young people aren't afraid of space-age technology and, in today's busy households, kids often make their own snacks or help with

What makes microwaves safe for kids? Good Food points out that "The microwave itself can't cause burns be cause it doesn't heat up, and it turns off automatically when the door is opened." However, the magazines add experts like Nancy Boyle Levene of Sharp Electronics says that children under 10 or 11 years of age should not be allowed to use the microwave - or do any other form of cooking without supervision. In addition, Good Food says that "Children should know about a few microwave-specific hazards. Even though cooking utensils aren't heated by the microwave process, they may get hot enough to cause burns through their contact with hot food.

heating, which occurs when a liquid heated in the microwave doesn't appear to be boiling but erupts suddenly when moved." The magazine advises children and adults to "... let hot liquids sit untouched in the microwave for a minute or two after it is turned off, and stir them gently with a spoon before moving them."

Parents can get their kids involved with microwave by trying any or all of the following five projects:

. Defrosting frozen juices and softening ice cream are good starter projects.

·How about making some English muffin pizzas? Kids . can top toasted English muffin halves with bot peroni slices, and then shredded Jack, mozzarella, and/or Parmesan cheese. Next the muffins are placed in the oven on a microwave-safe paper towel and heated on HIGH power about 45 seconds, or until the cheese melts."

•"Baked potatoes are a nutritious snack that kids can make interesting with toppings," says Good Food. Levene suggests that kids make hot dogs: "Just put a hot dog in a bun, with cheese if desired, wrap the whole thing in a paper towel, and heat on HIGH Four hot dogs take about 2 minutes, plus 45 seconds of standing time," says Good Food.

*Remember S'mores? Why not have your kids make some? Good Food says that "S'mores become new-fangled in the microwave. A piece of chocolate bar tops a graham cracker, with marshmallows on top of that. After a few seconds in the microwave, the marshmallows expand into puffy clouds, while the chocolate does not appear melted until after it's moved - a magical combination.'

*And there's always popcorn," says Good Food. "Try one of the microwave popcorn brands that comes with its own container or invest in a microwave-safe

Thom Bierdz

The role of Phillip Chancellor was Bierdz's first recurring professional acting role. His previous experi-ence included a small part in the film "St. Elmo's Fire." and a guest-starring role on TV's "Highway to Heaven." In high school, Bierdz auditioned for, but was never cast in plays. He headed for Hollywood right after graduating.

Whatever happened to the character of Kyle Sampson (played by Larkin Malloy) on Guiding Light ? I missed a few episodes and when I saw the show again he was gone. - D.C.,

Kyle returned to New York City after realizing things weren't going to work out romantically for him and Reva Lewis (Kim Zimmer). Malloy is now playing Travis Montgomery on "All My Children. What has Brian Patrick

Clarke been doing professionalsince his departure from "General Hospital"? - P.S., Barnesboro, Pa.

Clarke recently completed shooting a role in the fea-ture film "Private Road." He will also be included in the NBC movie "Eight Is Enough Reunion." Clarke portrayed baseball player Merle "The Pearl" Stockwell in the series "Eight Is

For a show that relies lescent jokes brimming with innuendo. NBC's Night who operate in a breakneck

In direct contrast to the high-pitched bysteria of the characters, Marsha Warfield plays bailiff Roz Russell in a slow, deadpan style that's attention-grabbing for its very lack of showiness. Warfield took over a seemingly jinxed role. Selma Diamond and Florence Halop, who had each played a bailiff in a feisty, wisecracking style, died within a short time of each other. "I came into the show not wanting to compete with people who were already established and knew what they were doing," explained Warfield. "That would have been the quickest way to lose the to radio comedians was the only way to stand out. Things were pretty much in a state of flux when I came in," she explains. "I thought of other actors who had come into established shows. I remembered when Steve 'Barney Miller' as Dietrich, he chose to underplay his role, and he really stood out. I patterned myself after him a little. I took a big risk, but the character was pretty loosely defined, so I thought I'd try." With a role in a top-20 show and a standup comedy act that she takes on tour across the country, Warfield doesn't worry about such matters as the total lack of reality in the courtroom her Landesberg joined the cast of character inhabits. "It's a set," she says practically. 'It's a TV show. I wouldn't go onto a set of a bedroom and take my clothes off and go to sleep, and I don't go onto this set like it's a real courtroom.

Warfield's practicality also extends to her view of herself. "I always knew I could stand up in front of an audience and be funny," she asserts. "But it's like anything else. If you're a doctor you don't have to doctor all the time, and if you're a comedian you don't have to be funny all the time.

So who does she think is

'That's easy," says War-

Two Sentenced For Violation Of Probation

During Garrett County District Court proceedings last week, Judge Jack R. Turney found two local men guilty of violation of probation charges and reinstated a one-year sentence to the Marvland Department of Corrections for each of the men. Richard A. Kinzey, 22, Friendsville, and David A. Kinzey, 23, Grantsville, had been found guilty, in separate cases, of theft following an incident in February of last year when they reportedly stole gasoline from Custom Blend Feeds in Grantsville. The sentences had previously been suspended and each was placed on probation by Judge Turney. Henry R. Adams represented both men. In other court cases, Frank Fraley, 34, Oakland, was sentenced to 90 days in the Garrett County Jail after he was found guilty on charges of battery and trespassing.

The judge then suspended the sentence and placed Fraley on 12 months supervised probation for the battery charge and fined him $50. He was fined $25 for the trespassing charge and ordered to serve the same probation time concurrently with the other charge.

The charges were filed by Donald W. Stull, Mtn. Lake Park following a March 20 incident when Fraley reportedly entered Stull's property and remained there after having been notified not to do so. He also allegedly assaulted and battered Stull then. John R. Toston, public defender, represented Fraley

Harold G. Beachy, 43, Grantsville, was found gilty of theft and given a 90-day suspended sentence. He was then placed on 12 months unsupervised probation and fined $50.

Tfc. R.M. Hershberger, Maryland State Police, filed the charge following a May 1 incident along U.S. Rt. 48 west of Casselman Bridge where Beachy reportedly stole the registration tags from another car. John R. Toston, public defender, represented Beachy. Kenneth L. Livengood, 26, Grantsville, received a sentence revision after having been found guilty of a felony theft, and Judge Turney handed down probation before judgment with one year added to Livengood's

HEARING AS A SOCIAL TOOL

An older person's hearing may throw a needless and urmountable barrier in his way. It can lead to disouragement by the failure to understand what others say. Or, it may lead to the fear of making an inappropriate reply. As a result, he may find it easier to withdraw into isolation, rather than coping with the frustrations. Such a person may have already lost much social contact because of mandatory retirement. death of a spouse, separation from his children, or per haps living alone. In fact, several experts believe that some of the "senility" of old age really reflects a breakdown in social communication and an emotional re action to isolation in a fading world. It is left to concerned friends, relatives, or even the hearing impaired them selves to investigate the possible benefits of a hearing aid in order to overcome this plock to happiness.

Hearing affects our daily ife and social interaction with others. If you have a hearing loss, you may well find the answer at ALLE-GANY HEARING & SPEECH ASSOCIATES. We have available the hearing assist devices that allow the vibrant sounds of life to return so that you may enjoy your lifestyle and your friendships.

Aside from the social consequences, consider the physical risks to the hearing mpaired.

It can happen! An unpaid electric bill can result in the disconnection of a customer's electric service. In any such case, Potomac Edison always sends a "final notice" before terminating service. This gives the customer time to contact us in order to make payment arrangements.

However, there are frequently reasons why a customer still may not pay the bill. These could include sickness, absence from home or simply the inability to pay. Because of these and other "special" situations, Potomac Edison offers a "Third Party Notification" program. This service, at no extra cost, enables the customer to designate another person whom we can contact before we must disconnect electric service for nonpayment of a bill.

The third party the customer designates may be a friend, relative, doctor, clergyman or even an agency. While the third party is under no obligation to pay the delinquent bill, it does provide an opportunity for some action or assistance to avoid disconnection.

Simply Let Potomac Edison Know Who You Want Notified

The designation of a third party is voluntary on your part. Only you can determine whether the program would serve a useful purpose in your situation.

Should you decide to designate a third party who will receive a duplicate of any possible disconnect notice, please complete the form at the bottom of this ad and mail or bring it back to the Potomac Edison office serving your location. Be sure the form is signed by both the customer and the third party.

PLAQUE PRESENTED TO SHERIFF EVANS - Garrett County Sheriff, M. Van Evans, was recently presented with a plaque by Joe Becker, representative from the National Child Safety Council, in recognition of his outstanding and dedicated service to the safety of children. Evans, through the Sheriff's Office, helped to organize puppet shows which were presented to all the area elementary schools. The shows were designed to teach children safety lessons. He was also responsible for distributing literature on child safety throughout the schools. Evans noted his appreciation of the local business community for their support of the program.
